Police Rout 112 Indians

Chicago (UPI) — Riot-equipped Chicago policemen and Chicago Park District employees routed a group of Indians from an abandoned Nike missile site along the shores of Lake Michigan Thursday.

Before the 90 minute battle ended, three policemen and one park employee were injured. Twelve Indians, including one woman, were arrested and 100 others left.

The Indians had taken over the abandoned site June 14, vowing to die rather than give up the land.

Fence Removal

The incident began when park district personnel, accompanied by police, tried to remove fencing from around the base. As they reached for the barbed wire and cyclone fence, Indians drove them off with clubs and baseball bats. Additional police were called.

About 100 police, a fire department pumper and other equipment, including two helicopters and canine squads, responded.

The Indians, meanwhile, had gathered rocks, bottles, debris and several Molotov cocktails in preparation for the defense of the site.

Fire Bombs Thrown

More than 20 efforts to cut the fence by park officials were beaten back by the Indians, who threw rocks and bottles and tossed buckets of water on the torches used by park officials.

Several fire bombs thrown by the Indians started a number of small fires. A boat in the harbor adjoining the site was destroyed. It was valued at $10,000.

Thomas Barry, superintendent of the park district, said the dawn operation was one of several scheduled for Thursday at various missile sites now vacant. "This is a preliminary step to taking over the land. You have to do it one way or another," he said.

Building Destroyed

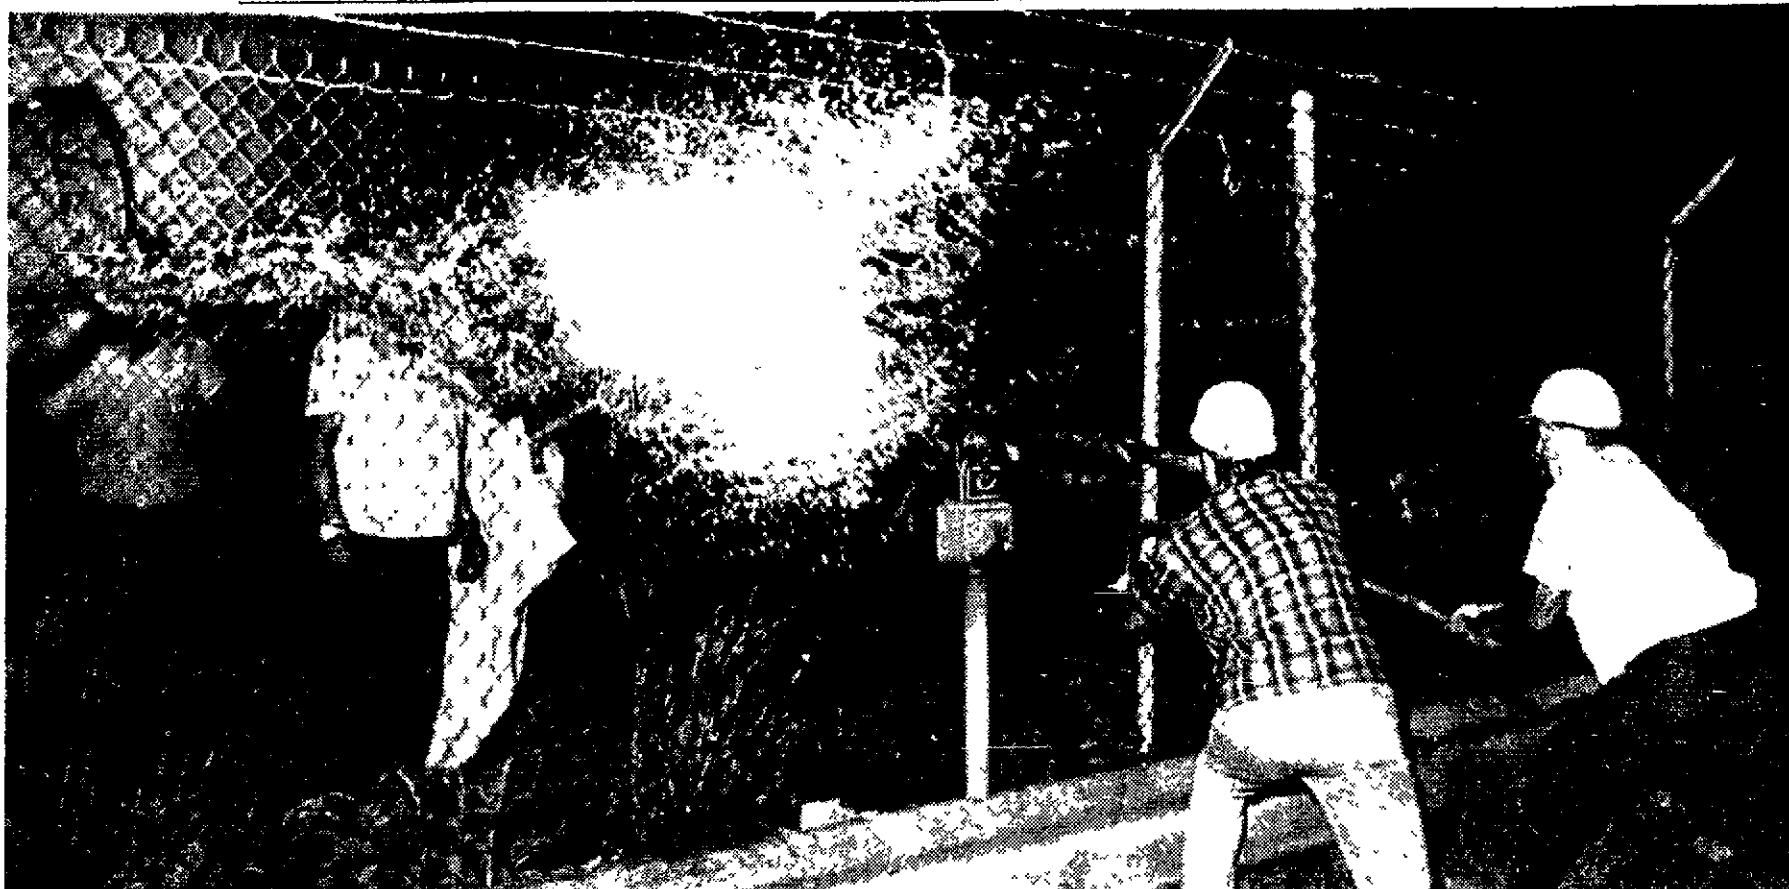

Barry said authorization to begin ripping down the fences came from the federal government on Wednesday.

The Indians moved onto the site after a fire destroyed an abandoned three story apartment building which they had seized last March.

The Nike site is among 100 acres of valuable lakefront land in the process of being returned by the Army to the Chicago Park District.

Police denied that the incident was a "police raid."

"The only Indians arrested were those who were actually throwing rocks, bottles and other objects at the police," a police spokesman said.

Nixon Sees New Points

. . . POW Stand Shifts

Paris (UPI) — The Vietnamese Communists handed the United States a new seven-point Vietnam peace plan Thursday and said that if President Nixon accepted it all American war prisoners and fighting men would be back home by Christmas.

In Washington, the White House said the plan appeared to have new elements — "positive as well as clearly unacceptable elements" — and promised to give it careful consideration.

The plan presented to the Paris Vietnam talks said that if the United States would set a deadline for a complete withdrawal of all troops from South Vietnam before the end of this year, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong would agree to an immediate exchange of prisoners.

Pullout Equals POW Release

The Viet Cong foreign minister, Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh, said that under the plan the Communists would begin freeing U.S. prisoners the very day the Americans began a complete withdrawal of their forces under a mutually agreed timetable.

The proposal marked the first time the Communists had pledged to free U.S. prisoners as soon as a deadline for the U.S. pullout was set. Previously they had promised only to start talks on freeing the POWs.

Mme. Binh called on President Nixon to answer "positively."

The U.S. chief negotiator, David K. E. Bruce, won a prompt adjournment of the Paris talks session to start an immediate scrutiny of the Communist peace blueprint. He refused to discuss its merits with newsmen.

Lam Skeptical

Showing much more skepticism, South Vietnam's negotiator, Pham Dang Lam, told newsmen the Communist plan would be examined but that at first sight it contained preconditions already rejected by the allies.

White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler said the proposal would be taken under study but added "we will accept no arrangement that will turn the 17 million people of South Vietnam over to the Communists."

On Capitol Hill, congressional leaders were cautiously optimistic toward the Communist offer. Both Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and his Republican counterpart, Hugh Scott, said it showed that Nixon's plan of gradual troop withdrawal was working.

But Senate doves George S. McGovern, D-S.D., and Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., said they would reintroduce their amendment cutting off funds for the war after Dec. 31 if the administration turns down the Communist offer.

'National Concord'

"The political, social and religious forces in South Vietnam aspiring to peace and national concord will use various means to form in Saigon a new administration favoring peace, independence, neutrality and democracy," Mme. Binh said.

Viet Cong spokesman Dong Dinh Thao later explained at a news conference that the major innovations over past Viet Cong proposals were the promise to start releasing all prisoners the day American troops start moving out, and the freedom of action the Viet Cong left for present non-government forces to form a new administration.

The Communist offer made it clear there would be two cease-fires: one going into effect pending the U.S. pullout and the other one decreed only after the formation of a new "national concord" government composed of the Viet Cong and the new Saigon administration. The "national concord" government's main task would be organizing new general elections.

The blueprint also pledged to keep North and South Vietnam out of any foreign alliance. To achieve their reunification through peaceful talks and the opening of normal relations with the United States while demanding U.S. indemnification for damages caused in both Vietnams.

The plan urged international guarantees for the peace pact, apparently in answer to allied concern that once U.S. troops are gone the Communists would seize power in the South.

All-State Honors Go To Six Students

. . . TWO YOUTHS TIE IN BALLOTING FOR IDEAL BOY

Six Nebraska high school students received honors Thursday night as the All-State High School Course at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln closed with a final banquet in the Nebraska Union.

Two youths shared the coveted title of Ideal Boy — Mike Keating of Hastings and Landis Magnuson of Lincoln. Judith Lynn Pelter of Norfolk was named Ideal Girl.

It marked the first time in the history of All-State that there was a tie in the voting for the Ideal Boy. The election was conducted through a popular vote of the 300 high school students enrolled in All-State this year.

Three other awards made on faculty recommendations were also presented at the banquet, two for outstanding performance in dance and one for outstanding accomplishment in art.

Craig Pursley of Lexington received the award in art.

The award for the top student majoring in dance went to Cheryl Priess of Lincoln.

Susan McChristy of Columbus received the award for the top student with a minor in dance.

All of the honors were presented by All-State Director John Moran, professor of music at NU. Guest speaker at the banquet was the Rev. Clarence Forsberg, pastor of St. Paul's Miss Pelter, 17, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Pelter. She will be a senior at Norfolk Senior High School next fall. An All-State music major, she participated in band, sang soprano in the All-State chorus, and studied applied flute. Miss Pelter is active in the high school varsity band and the pep club.

Keating, 17, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Keating. A Hastings Senior High School graduate, he was a member of the All-State Chorus and the "Pops" chorus, and studied voice. He also sang a solo in one of the student recitals. A tenor singer, he plans to major in music at NU this fall. While attending high school, he was a member of two select vocal groups and was elected student conductor for the Hastings Varsity Choir. He played the lead in "Camelot" a year ago and has received a superior rating for a vocal solo at the district music contest.

Magnuson, 17, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Magnuson. A student is theatre at All-State, he will be a senior at Lincoln High School this fall. A member of the student council, he also participates in both speech and music activities. Last year he played lead roles in "The Enchanted," "Arsenic and Old Lace," and "Paint Your Wagon." He also won the state championship in interpretative public address.

Debate Contest Winners

Two All-Staters debating the negative side of the United States jury system issue were named winners Thursday of the All-State debate competition.

Debbie Brandt of Grand Island and Dodie Acklie of Lincoln Southeast won the competition with their negative arguments on "Resolved: The jury system in the United States should be significantly changed."

Debating the affirmative side of the final competition were Mary Lee Holdt of Lincoln East High and Todd Patterson of Bellevue.

'30-35 Lincoln Women A Week Get N.Y. Abortions'

By TOM EKVAL

Star Staff Writer

The Human Rights Commission Thursday was told that "30-35 women per week leave Lincoln for New York" for legal abortions, almost all women from middle and upper income families.

Mrs. Rhonda German, executive director of the Family Planning Center, made the comment to the commission members in urging that abortion and birth control laws be changed in Nebraska.

Mrs. German said on the other hand low-income women are not able to afford the New York trip and therefore must either bear the child or turn to the illegal abortionist.

'Time To Change Laws'

"The time has come to see that laws are changed" to prevent unwanted pregnancies and children, she stressed.

The commission decided to take up the controversial subjects of abortion and birth control at its Aug. 5 meeting, determine whether the area falls within the scope of commission activities and if so, what the commission should do.

After considerable discussion, the Human Rights Commission decided to include the subject in its public session rather than discuss birth control and abortion during an executive session.

Those for the open meeting felt that people should be able to address the group on the matter if the commission members are to get full information on the subject.

When questioned about how the 30-35 figure was arrived at, Mrs. German said the numbers are based on documented statistics compiled by counselors who have worked with women regarding abortions. The number does not include any who may have sought an abortion without being helped by a clergyman or social worker.

Mrs. German said the problems of unwanted children are not going to be solved unless every "sexually active" female is able upon request to obtain both information on birth control and the pill or other contraceptive devices.

She said that while some doctors are willing to make contraceptive devices available to an unmarried girl with a past pregnancy, some are reluctant to give them to the unmarried girl who has not had a pregnancy.

Mrs. German, who holds a degree in psychology, said she feels the situation needs to be dealt with before the matter becomes a problem.

One step needed, she said is to get rid of the "archaic law" which, although she said it is unenforced, prohibits the distribution of information on birth control to anyone.

The law makes the providing of information on birth control as well as the sale of any drug, instrument, medicine or apparatus to prevent conception or cause an abortion or miscarriage an offense punishable by up to a fine of $1,000 or six months in jail, or both.

Mrs. German, whose office is located in the YWCA and funded with federal money, said she also feels that as a backup measure, the laws on abortion should be liberalized so that anyone can obtain an abortion from a qualified physician.

"The decision should be between the woman and her doctor and in a licensed facility," she said.

Most Said Poor

She said most of those who do come to the clinic for birth control information and devices are poor.

Mrs. German said if birth control information and devices were freely distributed, "this would help cut down on the number seeking abortions."

She said after the meeting approximately half of those from the middle and upper income families who travel to New York for abortions are unmarried. The others are married women who do not desire to go through with bearing and rearing the child.

She said that in regard to teenage girls, the decision whether or not to provide the girl with birth control devices is left up to the doctor at the clinic.

"We are there to meet the needs of those seeking to come (to us)," she said. "It is not up for us to judge" the person on the morality of the matter.

The moral issue involved is one which should be dealt with on the home level, Mrs. German said.

CIA Director Leaves Israel After Talks On Soviet Power

By United Press International

U.S. Central Intelligence Agency chief Richard C. Helms left Israel Thursday following confidential talks with top Israeli political and military officials on the Soviet Union's growing power in the Middle East.

There was no official statement on Helms' discussions but Israeli newspapers said they included the threat posed by the Soviets to the southern flank of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

Helms left with his aides as secretly as he arrived earlier in the week aboard a U.S. Air Force jetliner.

Reports from Washington said Helms was flying to Iran and Turkey to continue a fact-finding mission for President Nixon. He arrived secretly in Israel Monday with his wife and six top aides, but his visit was not officially acknowledged until Wednesday by Washington or Jerusalem.

Israeli newspapers said Helms held formal talks with Prime Minister Golda Meir, Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan as well as informal conversations with Dayan, elder statesman David Ben-Gurion and security officials. They said he also visited Israeli-occupied Sharm el Sheikh, which guards the entrance from the Red Sea to Eilat.

Shortly after his departure, Israeli newspapers said Helms had made a "sober appraisal" of growing Soviet power in the Mediterranean and the Middle East and the threat posed to NATO.

The newspaper Yedioth Ahronoth said Helms favored "the bolstering and reinforcement of Israel and also regarded as realistic Israel's incorporation in some way in the Western military deployment."

Sources close to Dayan said Helms' visit may influence Washington to show more consideration for Israel's political and security stance and its refusal to withdraw completely from Arab territory occupied since the 1967 war.

Lack Of Funds Stalls Breath Tests

By United Press International

State Patrol Superintendent Col. J. E. Kruger said Thursday Nebraska drivers may not be faced with the possibility of taking on the road breath tests to measure alcohol content for some time.

Kruger noted the 1971 Legislature passed a measure authorizing officers to administer the tests on the road, but he also noted the lawmakers failed to appropriate money to buy testing equipment.

The superintendent said, however, the lack of equipment would not pose a serious roadblock to carrying out the intent of the law.

"Some funding would have been of value," Kruger said. "But I couldn't say the lack of funding precludes the use of the intent of the law."

The measure's intent, he said, is to get a person suspected of driving under the influence off the road for testing purposes without having to make an actual arrest.

Real Cool!!

Under the terms of the law, a person found to have .10 of one per cent of alcohol in his system through use of a breath test would be placed under immediate arrest.

He would be taken to a police station or hospital for more positive blood and urine tests.

Refusal to take the breath test could result in a fine from $50 to $100. Refusal to take the blood or urine test would subject the person to a drunk driving charge and a possible $300 fine, five months in jail and suspension of his drivers license.

Kruger said the suspect could still be taken in for the blood and urine test without being placed under arrest, and without subjecting him to the breath test first.

Purchasing equipment for use by patrolmen could be accomplished in two ways, Kruger said. One would be to wait until the legislature goes into session in January and request the money, or seek federal aid.

But in the meantime, another problem has arisen in connection with the equipment itself, Kruger said.

Testing of equipment at the national level has indicated there is a "margin of error" in some kinds, he said.

"So we're in the process of evaluating the various kinds of equipment available before we decide what kind we intend to use and then find some way to buy it," Kruger said.

Purchasing equipment for use by patrolmen could be accomplished in two ways, Kruger said. One would be to wait until the legislature goes into session in January and request the money, or seek federal aid.

But in the meantime, another problem has arisen in connection with the equipment itself, Kruger said.

Testing of equipment at the national level has indicated there is a "margin of error" in some kinds, he said.

"So we're in the process of evaluating the various kinds of equipment available before we decide what kind we intend to use and then find some way to buy it," Kruger said.

... PENTAGON STUDY SAYS

The New York Times

By FOX BUTTERFIELD

New York — The Pentagon's secret study of the Vietnam War indicates that the rapid expansion of American forces in 1965 and 1966 occurred because "no one really foresaw what the troop needs in Vietnam would be" and because the ability of the enemy forces "to build up their effort was consistently underrated."

"It would seem," the study asserts, that the American planners would have been "very sensitive to rates of infiltration and recruitment by the (Viet Cong and North Vietnamese army); but very little analysis was, in fact, given to the implications of the capabilities of the VC-NVA in this regard."

As a result of the unanticipated enemy buildup, the Pentagon study discloses, Gen. William C. Westmoreland's troop requests jumped from a total of 175,000 men in June 1965 to 275,000 that July, to 442,000 in December and then to 542,000 the following June. Neither the requests of the American commander in Vietnam nor President Johnson's rapid approval of all but the last of them was made public.

'Colossal Misjudgment'

At the same time, the study says, the Johnson administration's continual expansion of the air war during 1965 and 1966 was based on a "colossal misjudgment" about the bombing's effect on Hanoi's will and capabilities.

In particular, the study discloses that the administration's decision in 1966 to bomb North Vietnam's oil-storage facilities was made despite repeated warning from the Central Intelligence Agency that such action would not "cripple Communist military operations."

Instead, the study says, Washington apparently accepted the military's estimate that the bombing would "bring the enemy to the conference table or cause the insurgency to wither from lack of support." But the flow of men and supplies to the South continued "undiminished."

Monitor Says British Made Way For French Return To Vietnam

Boston (AP) — The Christian Science Monitor said Thursday Pentagon analysts studying American involvement in Vietnam concluded "it was the British who held the door open for the French to return to Vietnam at the end of World War II."

"And it was the British who went along with the French removal of a pro-Ho Chi Minh 'Committee of the South' in Saigon as early as September 1947—thus precipitating the first Indochina war out of which grew, the massive American involvement in Vietnam in the late 1960s," the newspaper said.

The Monitor said the study shows that because of British resistance, the American backed down on efforts to convince its allies to follow implicit Atlantic Charter promises by placing their colonial possessions under trusteeship after the war as a prelude to self-government.

Precedent Worries

The British, the Monitor said, wanted no precedent in Indochina which might have inhibited their return to Malaya and eventually signed a pact with France in October 1945 giving "full recognition . . . to French rights in Indochina."

The Monitor's third and final installment of what it said were previously unpublished Defense Department papers reported that direct American involvement on the ground in Vietnam was minimal since the Japanese had moved into French Indochina even before Pearl Harbor.

"Toward the end of the Japanese occupation," the Monitor said, "Ho Chi Minh's Viet Minh emerged as the sole efficient resistance apparatus within the country. And as such, it was the only organization to get help from the American Office of Strategic Services (OSS). But when the Japanese surrendered in August 1945, Vietnam was temporarily taken over, not by American or Free French forces, but by British and Nationalist Chinese."

tain" by the British commander "because of its lack of authority from the French and because of its inability to quell disorder in South Vietnam."

"Vietnamese retaliation was quick and violent," says the study. "Over 100 Westerners were slain in the first few days and others kidnapped; on 26 September the U.S. commander of the OSS in Saigon was killed. Thus the first Indochina war began in Cochinchina in late September 1945, and American blood was shed in its opening hours."

Panel Votes To Ask House To Hold Stanton In Contempt

Washington (UPI) — The House Commerce Committee — in an unprecedented vote — Thursday asked the House to press contempt of Congress charges against CBS President Frank Stanton and the television network for refusing to turn over film used in a news documentary.

Following the 25-13 vote, however, chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., said he would drop the matter if CBS would give his investigations subcommittee film from which portions were edited in the production of "The Selling of the Pentagon."

In New York, Stanton said he hoped the House would not approve the contempt citation which "though directed at CBS, is in effect taking dead aim against the First Amendment."

CBS has repeatedly said that the film, called outtakes, is the equivalent of a reporter's notes and protected from scrutiny by the freedom of the press guarantees of the First Amendment.

This marks the first time the committee has attempted to cite a television network executive for contempt and House historians say they cannot find a case in which a newsman — at least in modern times — has been held in contempt by the House.

If a contempt citation is approved by the House, the Justice Department would have to decide whether or not to prosecute Stanton and CBS in the federal courts.

"It would seem," the study asserts, that the American planners would have been "very sensitive to rates of infiltration and recruitment by the (Viet Cong and North Vietnamese army); but very little analysis was, in fact, given to the implications of the capabilities of the VC-NVA in this regard."

As a result of the unanticipated enemy buildup, the Pentagon study discloses, Gen. William C. Neither the requests of the American commander in Vietnam nor President Johnson's rapid approval of all but the last of them was made public.

'Colossal Misjudgment'

At the same time, the study says, the Johnson administration's continual expansion of the air war during 1965 and 1966 was based on a "colossal misjudgment" about the bombing's effect on Hanoi's will and capabilities.

In particular, the study discloses that the administration's decision in 1966 to bomb North Vietnam's oil-storage facilities was made despite repeated warning from the Central Intelligence Agency that such action would not "cripple Communist military operations."

Instead, the study says, Washington apparently accepted the military's estimate that the bombing would "bring the enemy to the conference table or cause the insurgency to wither from lack of support." But the flow of men and supplies to the South continued "undiminished."

The Pentagon's study of this period of escalation in the air and on the ground also makes these disclosures:

—American military commanders were confident of victory. Westmoreland, for example, told Washington in July 1965 that by using a search-and-destroy strategy he could defeat the enemy "by the end of 1967." And the same month, the Joint Chiefs of Staff assured Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara that "there is no reason we cannot win if such is our will."

—High-level civilian authorities, including McNamara, began to have serious doubts about the effectiveness of both the air and ground war as early as the fall of 1965, but they continued to recommend escalation as the only acceptable policy, despite their doubts.

—A secret Defense Department seminar of 47 scientists — "the cream of the scholarly community in technical fields" — concluded in summer 1966 that the bombing of North Vietnam had had "no measurable effect" on Hanoi. The scientists recommended building an electronic barrier between North and South Vietnam as an alternative to the bombing.

Open-Ended

When Johnson decided in July 1965 to accept Westmoreland's request for 44 combat battalions and to endorse his search-and-destroy strategy, he "left the U.S. commitment to Vietnam open-ended," the study declares.

"Force levels for the search-and-destroy strategy had no empirical limits," it adds. "The amount of force required to defeat the enemy depended entirely on his response to the build-up and his willingness to continue the fight."

"The basic idea" underlying the search-and-destroy strategy, the study says, "was the desire to take the war to the enemy, denying him freedom of movement anywhere in the country . . . and deal him the heaviest possible blows." This concept replaced the static-defense and enclave strategies, which called for fewer American troops, and had been tried briefly in spring 1965.

Monitor Says British Made Way For French Return To Vietnam

Boston (AP) — The Christian Science Monitor said Thursday Pentagon analysts studying American involvement in Vietnam concluded "it was the British who held the door open for the French to return to Vietnam at the end of World War II."

"And it was the British who went along with the French removal of a pro-Ho Chi Minh 'Committee of the South' in Saigon as early as September 1947—thus precipitating the first Indochina war out of which grew, the massive American involvement in Vietnam in the late 1960s," the newspaper said.

The Monitor said the study shows that because of British resistance, the American backed down on efforts to convince its allies to follow implicit Atlantic Charter promises by placing their colonial possessions under trusteeship after the war as a prelude to self-government.

Precedent Worries

The British, the Monitor said, wanted no precedent in Indochina which might have inhibited their return to Malaya and eventually signed a pact with France in October 1945 giving "full recognition . . . to French rights in Indochina."

The Monitor's third and final installment of what it said were previously unpublished Defense Department papers reported that direct American involvement on the ground in Vietnam was minimal since the Japanese had moved into French Indochina even before Pearl Harbor.

"Toward the end of the Japanese occupation," The Monitor said, "Ho Chi Minh's Viet Minh emerged as the sole efficient resistance apparatus within the country. And as such, it was the only organization to get help from the American Office of Strategic Services (OSS). But when the Japanese surrendered in August 1945, Vietnam was temporarily taken over, not by American or Free French forces, but by British and Nationalist Chinese."

The Monitor account of the papers went on:

With the Japanese surrender, Ho set up a government in Hanoi and was in control of what is now North and Central Vietnam. The Nationalist Chinese, responsible for the area under an agreement with the British and Americans, made no move to displace him and he remained in control there until the French made a deal with Chaing Kai-shek's forces and began to replace them in March 1946. But in Saigon, where the British were responsible, Adm. Louis Mountbatten's Southeast Asia Command was ferrying Free French troops ashore as early as Sept. 12, 1945.

Eleven days later, those Free French troops overthrew Ho's Committee of the South which — according to the Pentagon study — was viewed "with disdain" by the British commander "because of its lack of authority from the French and because of its inability to quell disorder in South Vietnam."

"Vietnamese retaliation was quick and violent," says the study. "Over 100 Westerners were slain in the first few days and others kidnapped; on 26 September the U.S. commander of the OSS in Saigon was killed. Thus the first Indochina war began in Cochinchina in late September 1945, and American blood was shed in its opening hours."

The Wednesday raid by 19

White House Orders Probe Of Unauthorized Plane Raid

Saigon (UPI) — Nineteen American warplanes struck a suspected rocket site on the North Vietnamese side of the demilitarized zone Wednesday in an unauthorized raid that brought an immediate White House order for an investigation, military sources said Thursday.

On the ground, the U.S. command announced that a total of 6,095 Americans, including combat troops in the embattled DMZ area and the last U.S. infantry outfit in the central highlands, were put on stand-down Thursday.

It was the biggest one-day U.S. withdrawal order of the Indochina war. It coincided with an announcement Thursday that American combat deaths for the first six months of this year are down 60% from the same period last year.

Latest Death Total

Twenty-one Americans were killed in action last week, down four from each of the previous two weeks and well under the average of 43 combat deaths a week so far this year.

(The Associated Press reported Thursday that latest figures raised to 45,321 the total of American battle deaths and to 300,510 the number wounded. There were 14 deaths last week from disease and other causes, increasing the war's toll of nonhostile deaths to 9,622.)

South Vietnamese casualties for the war so far reached 129,905 killed and 281,427 wounded, according to AP. Last week 492 South Vietnamese troops were killed and 976 wounded.

Daylight Raid

AP said the allies claimed 1,419 enemy troops killed last week, bringing the war's total of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong battle deaths to a reported 733,553.)

The Wednesday raid by 19

U.S. aircraft — 14 of them F4 Phantom jets and five of them armed spotter planes — came in broad daylight.

One of the spotter aircraft reported sighting Communist troops in the open. It requested artillery fire on the site, suspected as the assembly and storage point for the 122-millimeter rockets the Communists have been raining on allied outposts below the DMZ with devastating effects.

Near Fuller

The site is seven miles north of Fire Base Fuller, manned by Army of the Republic of (South) Vietnam (ARVN) troops, which was shelled into ruins and briefly overrun one week ago Thursday.

The site of the air raid is 600 yards north of the Ben Hai River dividing North and South Vietnam.

U.S. air and ground forces have orders not to fire into North Vietnam except in direct and immediate response to being fired on — the so-called protective reaction rule.

When the artillery refused to fire, the spotter plane pilot radioed his forward air controller, who was in another spotter plane nearby.

Many Killed

The controller called in the 14 Phantoms, military sources said, and the Phantoms plus five spotter planes — including that of the forward air controller himself — blasted the site with 500-pound bombs, flechette (dart bomb) and white phosphorus rockets and machinegun strafing runs.

The pilots estimated killing at least 50 and possibly as many as 300 North Vietnamese. They reported numerous secondary explosions indicating fuel and ammunition dumps had been hit.

Because they apparently violated the protective reaction rule, the White House ordered an Air Force colonel to the area to find out who was responsible, military sources said.

The White House is concerned that the raid would upset the Paris peace talks, the sources said.

Borderline Fireworks Stands Lure Huskers

... More Liberal Kansas Laws Are Cited

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau
Wymore — This is the week that the Kansas-Nebraska border takes on its annual appearance as one super-long checkout line.
With the approach of the Fourth of July, rockets and Roman candles and such sprout up like rhubarb all the way from Falls City to Benkelman.

Most every highway linking the two states has its fireworks stands. Whether they're parked pickups or a few nailed boards or an air-conditioned business corner, all are plainly going after Nebraska's green.

Husker folk are lured south by Kansas' more liberal fireworks laws. Black Cats, Zebras and other popular 1 1/2-inchers — the largest which can be sold — are the biggest draw.

Police Probing Bogus Checks

Lincoln police are investigating over $900 in bogus checks drawn on the First National Bank of Lincoln which began turning up at local taverns this week.

Police reported the checks were stolen on the night of June 20th or early morning of the 21st in a burglary of the Farmers' Co-op in Emerald.

According to police approximately seven of the 15 checks stolen have been located.

Memories Frightening For Woman Held Captive

Council Bluffs, Iowa (AP) — "I'm supposed to be taking it easy," said a 71-year-old great grandmother who was held captive in her home by a bank robbery suspect.

"Why did it happen so late in life?" asked Mrs. Doris Henderson, with a smile.

Mrs. Henderson spoke from her hospital room Thursday where she is recovering from a head cut, a black eye, a lot of frightening memories and "a healthy cry" after it was over Wednesday.

She hopes to go home from the hospital Friday.

Mrs. Henderson was held captive in her Bluffs home for more than 30 minutes shortly after the First National Bank westside branch was robbed.

She lives about five blocks from the bank.

"I heard all this commotion out there," she said. "There were sirens and cars going all over the place. Naturally, I went out to see what was going on."

She saw a man wearing blue and white striped coveralls and a stocking over his head, dash up to the porch.

"I went to fighting him. I was scared stiff. I don't know who he was and I don't like any strangers in the house," said the woman who lives alone.

Mrs. Henderson said the man, later identified as Steven Fred Scott, 29, a former inmate at Colorado State Penitentiary, hustled her into the house.

"I was hollerin' real loud and he cracked me on the head. I didn't pass out. But I staggered some. I asked him what he did that for and he said to keep me quiet."

"Very Nervous" She said the intruder was "very nervous." He paced the floor and asked her if she had any men's clothing in the house. He also asked if she had a car. She had neither.

The bandit asked to borrow Mrs. Henderson's suitcase and offered to pay her $20. He said he'd be staying about two hours, "until things cooled down."

"He had a pillow case full of money and I could see him flipping the bills," said Mrs. Henderson.

"Then the police came over to the house and started knocking on the doors and windows," she said. "He nodded to me to leave. I walked to the door and then flew over to the (Mrs. Linda) Wilson house" next door.

Mrs. Henderson climbed a four-foot gate to get into the Wilson house.

"I was yelling my lungs out to let me in. I flew into the house and sat down and bawled."

Lt. C. E. "Pat" Moore, a veteran officer, was shot to death as he entered the Henderson home. Scott later was wounded and died at a hospital.

Borderline Fireworks Stands Lure Huskers

... More Liberal Kansas Laws Are Cited

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Wymore — This is the week that the Kansas-Nebraska border takes on its annual appearance as one super-long checkout line.

With the approach of the Fourth of July, rockets and Roman candles and such sprout up like rhubarb all the way from Falls City to Benkelman.

Most every highway linking the two states has its fireworks stands. Whether they're parked pickups or a few nailed boards or an air-conditioned business corner, all are plainly going after Nebraska's green.

Husker folk are lured south by Kansas' more liberal fireworks laws. Black Cats, Zebras and other popular 1½-inchers — the largest which can be sold — are the biggest draw.

"A lot of our business comes from Lincoln and some people even drive down from Omaha," said Paul Klover, who sells just south of Wymore on bustling U.S. 77. An accountant in Manhattan, he combines the enterprise every year with a vacation at the farm of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Klover.

A special section in his shelves denotes the items which are not legal in Nebraska, and of course these are the most popular.

Last Month Hottest June In 19 Years

Omaha (AP) — It was the hottest June in Omaha in 19 years and the second hottest since 1933, the National Weather Service said Thursday in summarizing last month.

The average temperature last month was 77.8, which is 4.7 degrees above normal. Last year's average June temperature was 74.3.

The average low temperature last month was 65.8, while 62.5 was the average June low last year. On June 2, the thermometer dropped to its lowest monthly reading of 52.

While temperatures were above normal, June's rainfall of 3.3 inches was 1.23 inches below normal.

Police Probing Bogus Checks

Lincoln police are investigating over $900 in bogus checks drawn on the First National Bank of Lincoln which began turning up at local taverns this week.

Police reported the checks were stolen on the night of June 20th or early morning of the 21st in a burglary of the Farmers' Co-op in Emerald.

According to police approximately seven of the 15 checks stolen have been located.

Eddie Chambers 'Defiant'—Holm

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha School Board attorney said at a hearing Thursday that Eddie Chambers was not rehired as a counselor at Tech Junior High School because he was "defiant" and refused to follow the acting principal's orders.

Attorney Kenneth Holm also told the board that Chambers was "ineffective" as a counselor.

Attorney Richard Fellman for Chambers countered that Chambers' actions at Tech Junior High were frequently responsive to students and the problems of the community.

Standards of teaching and counseling that might apply in a mostly white school might be different at a school "on the edge of the black ghetto," Fellman said.

The three-hour-long hearing, conducted under security precautions, was recessed without testimony from Chambers. Another session is to be scheduled later, a board member said.

'Uncooperative'

Laurel Shewan, acting principal at the junior high, testified Chambers had been uncooperative and would not accept supervision. She said at one time on a television interview Chambers criticized Tech High teachers.

Miss Shewan, who testified 40 minutes, said Chambers once transferred a student to another school without consulting her. She also said Chambers once left the school building without telling her.

Joseph M. Hart Jr., board president, said special security police from Wells Fargo Inc. were hired to preserve "decorum."

Reporters were asked to produce official press cards issued by the Public Safety Department to enter the hearing room.

Hart said the hearing was not intended to be a "public forum where undue influences could be directed against the board's decision."

Walkers Charged In Beating Death

Pender (UPI) —Benjamin Walker, 32, and Leon Douglas Walker, 27, both members of the Omaha Indian tribe, are charged with second degree murder in the death of Joseph Picotte, 43, Winnebago.

The brothers were being held in Thurston County jail here under bond of $50,000 each.

Picotte died June 23 in an Omaha hospital where he had been taken after a May 29 beating on a county road north of Walthill.

Sheriff Clyde Storie said the Walker brothers are the first Omaha Indians to be charged with a major crime since last October, when a retrocession agreement became effective on the Omaha Reservation.

Game Commission Assumes Operation Of Offutt Museum

Omaha (AP) — The Nebraska Game Commission took over operation of the Strategic Aerospace Museum at Offutt Air Force Base Thursday.

Since its inception seven years ago, the growing collection of military aircraft, missiles and other memorabilia has been administered by the Air Force.

The Game Commission was given responsibility for the museum by the 1969 legislature after the Air Force gave the state a 50-year lease on the 41½ acre tract at the north end of Offutt.

Included in the collection are most of the aircraft associated Hanson was taken to a hospital, where his doctor reported he suffered superficial burns to the left elbow and bruises.

Memories Frightening For Woman Held Captive

Council Bluffs, Iowa (AP) — "I'm supposed to be taking it easy," said a 71-year-old great grandmother who was held captive in her home by a bank robbery suspect.

"Why did it happen so late in life?" asked Mrs. Doris Henderson, with a smile.

Mrs. Henderson spoke from her hospital room Thursday where she is recovering from a head cut, a black eye, a lot of frightening memories and "a healthy cry" after it was over Wednesday.

She hopes to go home from the hospital Friday.

Mrs. Henderson was held captive in her Bluffs home for more than 30 minutes shortly after the First National Bank westside branch was robbed.

She lives about five blocks from the bank.

"I heard all this commotion out there," she said. "There were sirens and cars going all over the place. Naturally, I went out to see what was going on."

She saw a man wearing blue and white striped coveralls and a stocking over his head, dash up to the porch.

"I went to fighting him. I was scared stiff. I don't know who he was and I don't like any strangers in the house," said the woman who lives alone.

Mrs. Henderson said the man, later identified as Steven Fred Scott, 29, a former inmate at Colorado State Penitentiary, hustled her into the house.

"I was hollerin' real loud and he cracked me on the head. I didn't pass out. But I staggered some. I asked him what he did that for and he said to keep me quiet."

"Very Nervous"

She said the intruder was "very nervous." He paced the floor and asked her if she had any men's clothing in the house. He also asked if she had a car. She had neither.

The bandit asked to borrow Mrs. Henderson's suitcase and offered to pay her $20. He said he'd be staying about two hours, "until things cooled down."

"He had a pillow case full of money and I could see him flipping the bills," said Mrs. Henderson.

"Then the police came over to the house and started knocking on the doors and windows," she said. "He nodded to me to leave. I walked to the door and then flew over to the (Mrs. Linda) Wilson house" next door.

Mrs. Henderson climbed a four-foot gate to get into the Wilson house.

"I was yelling my lungs out to let me in. I flew into the house and sat down and bawled."

Lt. C. E. "Pat" Moore, a veteran officer, was shot to death as he entered the Henderson home. Scott later was wounded and died at a hospital.

Hunt Continues For Suspect

Omaha (AP) — Omaha police issued a pickup order Thursday for a Rock Island, Ill., man sought in connection with a council Bluffs, Iowa, bank robbery Wednesday that left two persons dead and two wounded.

Police said the pickup order for Daniel Ford, 26, was issued after a request from the Council Bluffs Police Department.

The order said Ford was being sought "on suspicion of homicide and robbery."

In Council Bluffs, Pottawattamie County Atty. Lyle Raeburn said a warrant for Ford's arrest wouldn't be issued "until I find out the facts."

Killed in the robbery were Council Bluffs Police Lt. C. E. Moore, 52, and a man identified as Steven F. Scott, about 29, one of the two bank robbery suspects.

Patrolman Michael McEvoy and Dr. William Hombach, a retired dentist, were wounded.

The shootings occurred a few minutes after the robbery of a drive-in office of the First National Bank in Council Bluffs when officers confronted Scott at a nearby home where he had hidden and was holding a woman hostage.

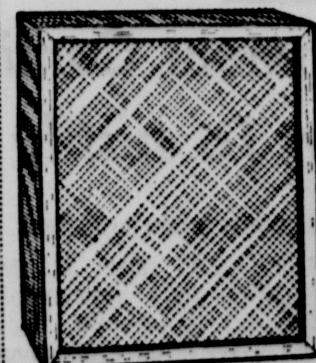

Des Moines police reported Thursday that a warrant was issued for Scott last week in connection with the armed robbery at a sporting goods store in Des Moines in 1969.

And Clinton police said Thursday Scott was wanted in connection with the beating death of a Clinton woman, Florence Luedtke, 74, died in a local hospital June 9, as the result of a beating she received by two men earlier.

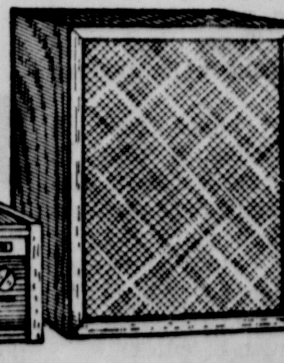

The two armed bandits entered the bank at about 9:30 a.m. Wednesday and escaped with about $50,000 dollars. All the money was believed recovered.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

This is a time for the American people to have confidence in themselves. The need and, indeed, the responsibility for this is implicit in the U.S. Supreme Court ruling in favor of the New York Times and Washington Post publication of the Pentagon Papers.

That court ruling was founded in the words of the First Amendment to the Constitution. They are, in part: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press . . ."

Professionally speaking, the ruling was a victory for the communications media of the nation but more than that, it was a victory for the American people. It demonstrates a confidence in the people to understand their nation and the world and to react in an intelligent manner to that understanding.

This is a vital part of our democracy, an essential ingredient of all the freedoms that we enjoy in this Republic. The finding of the court, therefore, fixes upon the American people a responsibility to be informed to the best of their ability and to partake in the political processes that are based in a free electorate and open elections.

The impact of this case will be felt today and for a long time to come in a wide range of national and international affairs. It is true, as many have pointed out, that the Pentagon papers do not answer all the questions about the Vietnam war.

They do clearly show some things, however. They show without question, for instance, that major policy decisions were made by past presidents without the knowledge of Congress and the American people.

The publication of the papers will not end this practice. It is safe to assume that President Nixon is today operating under policies about which neither Congress nor the American people know much of anything.

It is not altogether wrong, either, that he is doing so but what has transpired in the case of the Pentagon Papers has placed such action in a new light. Governmental secrecy is no longer a matter to be taken lightly or for granted.

Any current administration now has a greater obligation to take into its confidence both Congress and the people to whatever extent this is in keeping with the national interest. Certainly, this needs to be done to a greater degree than it has been done in the past.

Beyond that, material in the classified files must be subject to better examination for the purpose of its release to the public. This is the exact thing on which the high court acted — on material covering the years of our Vietnam involvement up through 1968.

This is important from two points of view, it seems to us. First, knowing that such material is subject to publication puts a current administration on notice that what it does today may well be fully known in a relatively short time.

Secondly, it gives the people an opportunity to judge the present and consider the future in light of the past, a highly valuable experience. With the new insights we now have on Vietnam, for instance, we might well see some changes in the direction of our foreign policy.

The American people know today that the Johnson administration's first bombing halt in the war was basically the farce that the communists said it was. It was not an honest effort to end the war, but a cleverly conceived plan to use its rejection by the enemy as a means of further escalation of the war.

We are beginning to see that the nation may well have made some bad choices and bad decisions in the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations, even though they were not necessarily dishonest choices or decisions. By seeing the error there, we may avoid such mistakes tomorrow.

The American people need have no fear that the court ruling in some way damages the operations of government. They need only realize that the ruling is an expression of faith in the ability of the people to manage their freedom and maintain their representative form of government.

ALAN EHRENHALT

Gerrymandering Still Much A Part Of Political Strategy

WASHINGTON—It looked like a reptile, but it was a legislative district. Long and squiggly, it was drawn up in 1812 by Gov. Elbridge Gerry of Massachusetts to guarantee the election of a Democrat to the state senate. "That will do for a salamander," observed painter Gilbert Stuart, adding claws and a tail. No, complained a disgusted Federalist, "better say Gerrymander."

The story is 159 years old, but the Gerrymander, as a term and as a political strategy, is very much with us. Right now, in fact, it is thriving, as states are forced to redraw their congressional and local legislative districts to conform with the 1970 census.

Actually, politics has always been part of the districting process. The Constitution directs that seats in Congress be reapportioned every 10 years, but says nothing about how the lines are to be drawn. As a result, we have had nearly two centuries of partisan bickering. The first presidential veto was cast by George Washington on a reapportionment bill in 1792.

From 1901 to 1929 congressional districts were required to be compactly drawn, but the provision was dropped in the Reapportionment Act of 1929. A number of current specimens demonstrate that creative redistricting is not a lost art. One is Missouri's sprawling Eighth District, carved like a distorted "Y" into the south central part of the state. Another is the Texas Sixth, a strip of land twisting 250 miles, from Dallas to the Houston suburbs.

This year's job is tougher than ever. As in the past, population shifts have forced some states to gain or lose congressmen and local areas to gain or lose state legislators. "As nearly as practicable," ruled the Supreme Court in 1964, "one man's vote in a congressional election is to be worth as much as another's." The court was responding to the obvious inequity in which, for example, one congressional district in Texas had only 216,371 residents while another had 951,527.

For every ballot cast in downtown Dallas, a voter in the adjoining rural district was casting the equivalent of more than four. For more than a generation, rural-dominated state legislatures employed the population loophole to stunt the political growth of cities. That kind of mischief is gone. But there are other tricks in Elbridge Gerry's book. The spiritual heirs of the Massachusetts governor are proving adept at making congressional districts equal in size while drastically altering their political complexion.

A typical strategy was used in Virginia, where a Democratic legislature passed a bill placing Republican Reps. Richard H. Poff and William C. Wampler together in one district, and Republican Reps. Joel T. Broyhill and William Lloyd Scott in another. If all four seek re-election, two are certain to lose. That may be why Scott is expected to run for the Senate.

The surprise is not that gerrymandering is done, but that it receives so little public attention. Most redistricting bills are written in the privacy of state legislative chambers, and signed by the governor after a squabble that rarely always involves party regulars but rarely filters down to the constituents. Redistricting may be too important to be left to the politicians, but it also may be too complicated for most of the rest of us to understand.

'They Count Me As Working'

Colin Stirring Things Up

Lancaster County Commissioner Robert Colin said when he ran for office that he didn't intend to live with the status quo of things if successful in his election bid. He has kept the promise but how good or bad that is remains to be seen.

While questioning many things that might otherwise go sailing through without any question at commissioner meetings, Colin isn't bringing any tranquility to the scene. At the moment, he has not demonstrated the ability to effect change without considerable turmoil.

This suggests that he might, at times, be nit-picking or running like a bull through a china shop, something he will have to decide for himself. Some of his positions, such as decals on all county vehicles, have some merit but it is questionable that past practice has been bad enough to warrant serious question.

His blasting of the planning process by the new Lancaster County Goals and Policies Committee, if that is its name, may be a politically popular thing to do but lacks any solid and thoughtful basis.

This is no effort to actually criticize Colin for anything he has said or done up to this point but it might be well if he took a little more time to think and gather facts about matters before making them a public issue.

The new commissioner should be encouraged to scrutinize those things which appear to him to be questionable but it is hoped he does not needlessly inject into county government any more divisiveness than is already there. There are times when conflict simply must be faced but there is something to be said, also, for a spirit of harmony and cooperation.

As for the other two commissioners, the burden on them is not to have a negative knee-jerk reaction to everything that Colin says or proposes. They should welcome a fresh look at all matters, even if it does mean that some things they have done in the past are subject to question.

Laird Position Untenable

Monday on this page we talked about the dangers of imposing an artificial limit on the defense budget, as was proposed in the Senate, but at the same time, the need for closer congressional scrutiny of Pentagon spending requests.

The Senate Tuesday by an overwhelming vote rejected an amendment to a defense appropriations bill that would have imposed such a limit by cutting military spending to a $68 billion annual rate, $7 billion below President Nixon's budget request for the next 12 months. Whereas defeat of the amendment was justified for good reasons, we find Defense Secretary Melvin Laird's opposition to it to be the height of bureaucratic nonsense.

Laird said in advance of the Senate vote that should Congress approve the measure, "We would have to cancel, in the contract area, around 40% of our existing contracts and we would not be able to place any new contracts."

Laird said further that the $7 billion slash in the defense budget proposed by Sens. William Proxmire and Charles Mathias would force him to cut defense levels almost in half, eliminating up to 1.5 million military and civilian jobs and would "provoke a crisis in national security."

Although a ceiling on defense spending is not supportable out of national security considerations, neither is Laird's position that the defense establishment should be maintained at present levels because he doesn't want to fire people. Laird's effort to help solve the unemployment problem in a sense creates an artificial floor in the defense budget which is as bad as an artificial ceiling.

Government Continues To Seek Loopholes In Effort To Justify Its Acts Of 'Prevention'

WASHINGTON—Back in the fifties, Mort Sahl used to recite what was then considered a bitter portrayal of the Nixon family at home. Mrs. Nixon, as the story went, was sitting on one side of the fireplace, knitting an American flag. Mr. Nixon was sitting on the other side of the fireplace, reading the Constitution — in search of loopholes.

But it is not established to what extent the decision of the Nixon administration to try to prevent publication of the Pentagon Papers was a product of the President's personal impulse. Whether it was or not, that decision is one more in a chain of approaches which has given this administration the appearance of searching for loopholes in the Constitution.

Here is the District of Columbia, for the first time in American history, it has imposed a system of preventive detention of persons who may commit crimes at some time in the future. And although the courts have not as yet upheld this presumptive breach of the Bill of Rights, Attorney General Mitchell has recommended preventive detention as a part of nationalwide crime legislation.

Mitchell also is advocating — and presumably conducting — a system for preventive eavesdropping, through his contention that the executive branch has the inherent right to bug, or wiretap, without any form of court authority or disclosure, those persons it considers threats or potential threats to national security. On its face, this appears to violate the Fourth Amendment's prohibition of unreasonable searches and seizures; and it is plainly aimed at the preventive smothering of what most Americans historically have assumed to be their constitutional right to engage in dissident political activity.

Last spring, so successfully that Mitchell has urged it as a national model, the administration also permitted and apparently encouraged the Washington police to engage in preventive dragnetting against the Mayday demonstrators. While sweeping the streets on the first morning of the action might have been justified, there could have been only one reason for holding thousands of the demonstrators for 48 hours or more without charges, and when there was no possibility of filing any charges, orderly arrest procedures having been suspended. That one reason was to prevent further demonstrations, although there is no authority in the Constitution for that kind of prevention.

Many broadcasters, glancing nervously at licenses that must some day be renewed, believe this administration also has engaged in a systematic campaign of preventive inhibition of aggressive radio and television journalism. If so, it has to be added in fairness that the Democratic Congress is now being asked by a House Commerce subcommittee — controlled by Democrats — to join in harassing the Columbia Broadcasting System with a contempt citation.

For the last two weeks, this administration also has sought by every means within its power to impose preventive suppression of the news on the American press, and thus on the American people. For the first time in American history, a prior restraint was imposed by federal court orders against a newspaper trying to publish what it considered information; and although the Supreme Court has now declared that the government made no case

Post Office And Politics

WASHINGTON — Down at the Post Office Department, they are changing hats. William M. (Red) Blount is exchanging his cabinet hat as postmaster general to a business hat as head of the United States Postal Service, a semi-autonomous government operation.

If ever a man had an opportunity to show what business methods can do free of the political pressures of the old system, it is Blount. Nothing touches the average citizen so directly as the mail service or lack of it.

In recent years screams of rage have arisen over delays in delivery, lost mail, indifferent or hostile postmen — a whole catalogue of sins accumulating over many years. It took a letter two to four days to go from Washington to New York or from New York to Boston. Even with air mail and special delivery, the pace was a crawl.

Blount will work with a nine-member Board of Governors, named by President Nixon, all impressive big-business names. As postmaster general under the new dispensation, he will be a tenth member of the board. The reorganization provides a subsidy from the Congress for the transition period. An independent postal rate commission will fix rates — first-class mail has already gone from six to eight cents.

It comes down really to how quickly in view of all the built-in obstacles, the favoritism, the perquisites, the barnacles of 200 years, Blount can show improvements. He has already set a standard, in effect guaranteeing that an air-mail stamp will assure next-day delivery within a 600-mile radius. A similar standard is being worked out for first-class mail.

Taking politics out of the postal system was a noble ideal that seems a long way from fulfillment. The idea for a semi-autonomous corporation to operate the service originated with Lawrence F. O'Brien, currently chairman of the Democratic National Committee and Blount's predecessor as PMG. In a recent statement, O'Brien attacked Blount's stewardship and the steps he has taken thus far:

"Not only has the nationwide program of same-day delivery been abandoned, but drastic and often unpublicized cuts have been made on a regional basis in collection services, business deliveries, forwarding service, special delivery, window services, Saturday and other weekend services . . . Today it seems to be commonplace for first-class mail to take six to seven days to travel between cities and four or five days within metropolitan areas."

In the reply framed for Blount, the blame was passed back to the era over which O'Brien presided. Politics has been rampant in the congressional committees responsible for postal service.

In the House committee there was an angry dustup with Blount when he announced that supervision of all building and real estate would be turned over to the Army Corps of Engineers. Committee members long familiar with postal operation protested that this would abolish a bureau with great expertise in contrast to the corps which had none in this field.

The chief complaint against Blount is that his whole thrust is on economy, and the cutbacks have further slowed service. According to a report to the Senate Post Office Committee, the average time for delivery has increased by almost one day.

Certainly, Blount has a wealth of business expertise. He founded a general contracting company operating out of his home town of Montgomery, Ala., that has made him many times a millionaire. The Blount firm had an important piece of the Kennedy Space Center and in military contracts such as the hardened bases at missile sites. In his first public office — he had himself appointed postmaster general of the public service operation, so that his critics say he is now reporting to himself — Blount has shown a flair for putting himself before the public. He stands high in the administration.

The catch is that he may not stay too long in the post he assumed, in the new business operation he helped to bring about. It is widely felt that he will return to Alabama next year to run as a Republican against Sen. John J. Sparkman, who is serving his fourth term in the Senate after 12 years in the House. Sparkman is 71.

Blount, aged 50, would be a formidable candidate, appealing to independents and Democrats as an Alabamian who had made it in business and government. But before he leaves his present job, he had better show some conspicuous gains in mail service.

Letters To The Editor

All letters must be accompanied by writer's true name or initials. However, letters will be printed under a discretion.

Copier's Value

Lincoln, Neb.

I have noticed letters concerning the amount of noise made by the Lincoln Police Department helicopter. I feel that this noise is far from reaching an intolerable level. Those who complain should consider how much good the copier has done in the short amount of time it has been in the air.

I have come across a few examples, and these are only a few of many incidents one could cite by looking at the records.

(1) A car is involved in a hit-and-run accident. The lady in the car which was hit immediately calls the police and gives a description of the car that hit her. This is radioed to the copier which in turn spots the car immediately on No. 48th Street. The information is relayed to a cruiser car and arrests are made.

(2) One night last month, three different drunk drivers were picked up, after being spotted by the policeman in the copier, and more could have been if the cruisers on the ground had not been so busy.

(3) A young girl is being raped at 22nd and S Streets when the copier flies over and scares the assailant. The girl escapes and runs into the house and calls the police. The copier turns on the spotlight and sees the man running a block away. He is arrested.

(4) A lady in southeast Lincoln sees a man enter a house next door and knows the people have gone on vacation. She phones the police who radio the copier. Minutes later, he is arrested, and is found to be an escapee from the State Reformatory.

Here are four separate incidents taken at random from the records. This says nothing about the people who may be a little more careful because they know policemen in the copier may be watching for crime, as is pointed out by the fact that there has been only one roof-top burglary since the copier began flying.

Whether the copier is used for air cover on a narcotics raid or spotting a boy stuck in a smokestack, it serves a vital and useful purpose, a purpose which far outweighs any nuisance it may be creating due to sound. Also, the Police Department is keeping a close watch on developments now being made by the Army on mufflers for such machines.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

This is a time for the American people to have confidence in themselves. The need and, indeed, the responsibility for this is implicit in the U.S. Supreme Court ruling in favor of the New York Times and Washington Post publication of the Pentagon Papers.

That court ruling was founded in the words of the First Amendment to the Constitution. They are, in part: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press . . ."

Professionally speaking, the ruling was a victory for the communications media of the nation but more than that, it was a victory for the American people. It demonstrates a confidence in the people to understand their nation and the world and to react in an intelligent manner to that understanding.

This is a vital part of our democracy, an essential ingredient of all the freedoms that we enjoy in this Republic. The finding of the court, therefore, fixes upon the American people a responsibility to be informed to the best of their ability and to partake in the political processes that are based in a free electorate and open elections.

The impact of this case will be felt today and for a long time to come in a wide range of national and international affairs. It is true, as many have pointed out, that the Pentagon papers do not answer all the questions about the Vietnam war.

They do clearly show some things, however. They show without question, for instance, that major policy decisions were made by past presidents without the knowledge of Congress and the American people.

The publication of the papers will not end this practice. It is safe to assume that President Nixon is today operating under policies about which neither Congress nor the American people know much of anything.

It is not altogether wrong, either, that he is doing so but what has transpired in the case of the Pentagon Papers has placed such action in a new light. Governmental secrecy is no longer a matter to be taken lightly or for granted.

Any current administration now has a greater obligation to take into its confidence both Congress and the people to whatever extent this is in keeping with the national interest. Certainly, this needs to be done to a greater degree than it has been done in the past.

Beyond that, material in the classified files must be subject to better examination for the purpose of its release to the public. This is the exact thing on which the high court acted — on material covering the years of our Vietnam involvement up through 1968.

This is important from two points of view, it seems to us. First, knowing that such material is subject to publication puts a current administration on notice that what it does today may well be fully known in a relatively short time.

Secondly, it gives the people an opportunity to judge the present and consider the future in light of the past, a highly valuable experience. With the new insights we now have on Vietnam, for instance, we might well see some changes in the direction of our foreign policy.

The American people know today that the Johnson administration's first bombing halt in the war was basically the farce that the communists said it was. It was not an honest effort to end the war, but a cleverly conceived plan to use its rejection by the enemy as a means of further escalation of the war.

We are beginning to see that the nation may well have made some bad choices and bad decisions in the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations, even though they were not necessarily dishonest choices or decisions. By seeing the error there, we may avoid such mistakes tomorrow.

The American people need have no fear that the court ruling in some way damages the operations of government. They need only realize that the ruling is an expression of faith in the ability of the people to manage their freedom and maintain their representative form of government.

ALAN EHRENSHALT

Gerrymandering Still Much A Part Of Political Strategy

WASHINGTON—It looked like a reptile, but it was a legislative district. Long and squiggly, it was drawn up in 1812 by Gov. Elbridge Gerry of Massachusetts to guarantee the election of a Democrat to the state senate. "That will do for a salamander," observed painter Gilbert Stuart, adding claws and a tail. No, complained a disgusted Federalist, "better say Gerrymander."

The story is 159 years old, but the Gerrymander, as a term and as a political strategy, is very much with us. Right now, in fact, it is thriving, as states are forced to redraw their congressional and local legislative districts to conform with the 1970 census.

Actually, politics has always been part of the districting process. The Constitution directs that seats in Congress be reapportioned every 10 years, but says nothing about how the lines are to be drawn. As a result, we have had nearly two centuries of partisan bickering. The first presidential veto was cast by George Washington on a reapportionment bill in 1792.

From 1901 to 1929 congressional districts were required to be compactly drawn, but the provision was dropped in the Reapportionment Act of 1929. A number of current specimens demonstrate that creative redistricting is not a lost art. One is Missouri's sprawling Eighth District, carved like a distorted "Y" into the south central part of the state. Another is the Texas Sixth, a strip of land twisting 250 miles, from Dallas to the Houston suburbs.

This year's job is tougher than ever. As in the past, population shifts have forced some states to gain or lose congressmen and local areas to gain or lose state legislators. "As nearly as practicable," ruled the Supreme Court in 1964, "one man's vote in a congressional election is to be worth as much as another's." The court was responding to the obvious inequity in which, for example, one congressional district in Texas had only 216,371 residents while another had 951,527.

For every ballot cast in downtown Dallas, a voter in the adjoining rural district was casting the equivalent of more than four. For more than a generation, rural-dominated state legislatures employed the population loophole to stunt the political growth of cities.

That kind of mischief is gone. But there are other tricks in the Elbridge Gerry's book. The spiritual heirs of the Massachusetts governor are proving adept at making congressional districts equal in size while drastically altering their political complexion.

A typical strategy was used in Virginia, where a Democratic legislature passed a bill placing Republican Reps. Richard H. Poff and William C. Wampler together in one district, and Republican Reps. Joel T. Broyhill and William Lloyd Scott in another. If all four seek re-election, two are certain to lose. That may be why Scott is expected to run for the Senate.

The surprise is not that gerrymandering is done, but that it receives so little public attention. Most redistricting bills are written in the privacy of state legislative chambers, and signed by the governor after a squabble that nearly always involves party regulars but rarely filters down to the constituents. Redistricting may be too important to be left to the politicians, but it also may be too complicated for most of the rest of us to understand.

Colin Stirring Things Up

Lancaster County Commissioner Robert Colin said when he ran for office that he didn't intend to live with the status quo of things if successful in his election bid. He has kept the promise but how good or bad that is remains to be seen.

While questioning many things that might otherwise go sailing through without any question at commissioner meetings, Colin isn't bringing any tranquility to the scene. At the moment, he has not demonstrated the ability to effect change without considerable turmoil.

This suggests that he might, at times, be nit-picking or running like a bull through a china shop, something he will have to decide for himself. Some of his positions, such as deals on all county vehicles, have some merit but it is questionable that past practice has been bad enough to warrant serious question.

His blasting of the planning process by the new Lancaster County Goals and Policies Committee, if that is its name, may be a politically popular thing to do but lacks any solid and thoughtful basis.

This is no effort to actually criticize Colin for anything he has said or done up to this point but it might be well if he took a little more time to think and gather facts about matters before making them a public issue.

The new commissioner should be encouraged to scrutinize those things which appear to him to be questionable but it is hoped he does not needlessly inject into county government any more divisiveness than is already there. There are times when conflict simply must be faced but there is something to be said, also, for a spirit of harmony and cooperation.

As for the other two commissioners, the burden on them is not to have a negative knee-jerk reaction to everything that Colin says or proposes. They should welcome a fresh look at all matters, even if it does mean that some things they have done in the past are subject to question.

County Board Studies Budget Requests

The Lancaster County Board Thursday met with various elected officials and department heads to go over budget requests for the 1971-72 fiscal year which started also on Thursday.

County commissioners held the hearings on those individual budgets available to them. A complete budget of the federal and other funds has not yet been compiled.

Among budgets proposed was a $69,720 request for the public defender office.

Public Defender Clement Gaughan said some of the amounts for individual items will likely be necessary for his office to defend Antonio Vigil, who is charged with murder in the death of his wife.

Gaughan said in answering a question about the need for $4,000 for witness fees and experts that he may have to go to Kansas City to use doctors in the case.

"Everyone wants a mental examination now," he commended.

He remarked that no local doctor was interested in becoming involved in the Starkweather case in noting that there appears to be a reluctance regarding murder trials.

A total of $50,620 was requested in salaries.

Commissioner Kenneth Bourne said that the public defender office will probably be moving into the County-City Building on the fourth floor during September.

Those estimated budgets considered during the day as well as the last year's budget and actual expenses are below:

War Traffic Off In Panama Canal

Panama City, R.P. (UPI) — The Panama Canal Co. said Thursday a decline in Vietnam-bound traffic dropped canal revenues by $300,000 in fiscal 1971 to $100.6 million as compared to $100.9 million the year before.

Transits by government chartered ships carrying war supplies to Vietnam, and U.S. Navy vessels, dropped to 501 compared to 1,068 the year before, the canal company said. The total for fiscal 1971 was the lowest since 1964, it said.

Commercial transits increased by about three per cent in fiscal 1971 from 13,657 in fiscal 1970 to 14,031 in fiscal 1971.

Man Who Bit Dog Given $100 Fine

Sedalia, Mo. (AP) — Somton R. Foster, 81, of Sedalia, was fined $100 in municipal court for disorderly conduct by biting a dog.

Mrs. Lula Mae Scroggins of Sedalia brought her dog, Shoe Baby, to court and showed its wound, a one-inch slash on the flank.

Foster told Judge Lawrence Englund he had not bitten the dog but told Mrs. Scroggins he had as a joke. Foster's attorney said he planned to appeal the conviction.

FTC Calls Cigarette Ads Deceptive

Washington (AP) — Resuming its seven-year battle to require health warnings in cigarette advertising, the Federal Trade Commission accused six tobacco firms Thursday of alleged deception by failing in their advertising to disclose adequately, or at all, that cigarette smoking is dangerous.

The commission, in a split 3 to 1 vote, issued proposed complaints against six major cigarette manufacturers.

The commission contended that health warnings in advertisements by Brown and Williamson, Lorillard, Phillip Morris and R. J. Reynolds do not meet the yet unformulated standard for "clear and conspicuous" disclosure.

$2 1/4 Billion Public Jobs Bill Passed

Washington (UPI) — A $2.25 billion bill to create up to 200,000 public service jobs in the next two years won final congressional approval Thursday and went to the White House, where President Nixon said he would sign it into law.

The compromise measure, similar to one Nixon vetoed last year, passed the House on a 343-14 roll call vote after it was tailored in a conference with the Senate to meet administration demands.

The bill would authorize 90% federal matching grants to state and local governments to create jobs in such fields as recreation, education, health and police and fire protection whenever the national unemployment average exceeds 4.5% of the labor force. The current jobless rate is 6.2%.

The bill provides that "special consideration" be given Vietnam veterans in filling the jobs.

Advertising by the two other firms, American Brands and Liggett and Myers, contain no health warnings at all, the FTC said.

In a departure from normal commission practice, the FTC gave the firms six months to reach a voluntary disclosure agreement before further legal steps would be initiated.

The commission action was announced on the day that a congressional prohibition on FTC regulation of cigarette advertising expired.

Warning Required

The proposed complaints take no action against three other domestic tobacco companies who, a commission spokesman said, do not advertise.

The proposed consent order would give cigarette makers six months to sign or fight and would require their advertising to carry the words "Warning: The surgeon general has determined that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health."

One vacation a year...

...is an obsolete tradition

If one vacation a year is a company policy which you have no authority to change, don't be discouraged. There is something you can do about it. You can start your permanent vacation this week! And you don't have to change jobs to do it.

How?

Very simple. Use the money you were setting aside for your regular vacation or that little nest egg you have stashed away for something special and buy or make a down payment on your own parcel of private recreational land.

You can still enjoy vacation fun: swimming, golf, water skiing, fishing, hiking, camping or just relaxing in the beautiful unspoiled countryside of Lake Panorama. And the best part is . . . your Lake Panorama vacation will go on week after week or live at the lake year 'round, if you prefer. Unlike other vacations you have taken, you'll find that your investment in Panorama will continue to grow through the years to come.

Drive out to Lake Panorama anytime during the week . . . after work . . . on your day off. You'll always find a warm welcome.

There are free boat rides for visitors Monday thru Friday.

Lake Panorama

A professionally planned private recreation and vacation home community developed by Mid-Iowa Lakes.

DIRECTIONS

Turn north on Highway 4 on the east edge of Panora. Drive two miles north to entrance of Lake Panorama.

Start your permanent vacation this week . . . with a mini-vacation. We invite you and your family to see Lake Panorama today or any day. Office open 9:00 A.M. till dark.

County Board Studies Budget Requests

The Lancaster County Board Thursday met with various elected officials and department heads to go over budget requests for the 1971-72 fiscal year which started also on Thursday.

County commissioners held the hearings on those individual budgets available to them. A complete budget of the federal and other funds has not yet been compiled.

Among budgets proposed was a $69,720 request for the public defender office.

Public Defender Clement Gaughan said some of the amounts for individual items will likely be necessary for his office to defend Antonio Vigil, who is charged with murder in the death of his wife.

Gaughan said in answering a question about the need for $4,000 for witness fees and experts that he may have to go to Kansas City to use doctors in the case.

"Everyone wants a mental examination now," he commended.

He remarked that no local doctor was interested in becoming involved in the Starkweather case in noting that there appears to be a reluctance regarding murder trials.

A total of $50,620 was requested in salaries.

Commissioner Kenneth Bourne said that the public defender office will probably be moving into the County-City Building on the fourth floor during September.

Due Caution By Motorists Can Eliminate Travel Risk

Most of the risk in vacation travel can be eliminated if the driver by self-discipline will apply large quantities of patience, courtesy and common sense, Tom Ryan, director of the Nebraska Accident Records Bureau said Thursday.

Ryan, in urging caution for the 78-hour holiday period beginning at 5 p.m. Friday, noted that past averages plus the expected increase in traffic indicate that from five to eight persons will be killed and hundreds of others injured on Nebraska roads this weekend.

He said all motorists should be alert for farm equipment and boat trailers and should be "extra cautious" on county roads by slowing down and "looking again" at blind intersections and railroad crossings.

Ryan urged all motorists to make sure that all occupants use seat belts and to drive with lights on when traveling on rural roads so that other motorists can see oncoming traffic.

Last year three persons were killed in three separate accidents during the Independence Day weekend, 208 persons were injured and there were 421 traffic accidents, according to the bureau.

Bus Fare Hike Or Curtailment In Service Eyed

Omaha (AP) — There is a possibility the Omaha Transit Co. may ask for either a fare increase or a curtailment in service before the end of the year, General Manager James Donaghy said Thursday.

His comment came after members of Local 223 of the Transport Workers Union of America approved a new labor contract. The local represents about 216 drivers and maintenance workers.

Carl Stovie, president of the local, said the contract called for a wage increase of 70 cents an hour over two years. Fringe benefit increases amount to 10-cents an hour.

The new contract will raise a driver's wage to $4.01 an hour, not including the fringe benefits, he said. A top mechanic's wages will go to $4.23 an hour.

The firm's cash fare now is 40 cents.

Rogers Appeals To Press To Sit On Harmful Information

From Press Reports
Secretary of State William P. Rogers appealed to the press Thursday to voluntarily withhold publication of information from the secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam war which would "harm the security of the United States."

He told reporters at the State Department that "the government remains ready to lend its assistance in identifying any documents which if disclosed would result in such harm."

Meanwhile, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell threatened to prosecute everyone who possibly violated federal law in the leak and publication of the Pentagon papers.

Secrecy Blamed For Deaths
And Dr. Daniel Ellsberg, who says he leaked the papers, blamed government concealment of the study's information for the deaths of thousands of Vietnamese and Americans.

Mitchell, in a statement, said "The Department of Justice is continuing its investigation and will prosecute all those who have violated federal criminal laws in connection with this matter."

Ellsberg, 40, a senior researcher at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and a former employee of the Defense Department and the Rand Corp., is the only person to be charged in the case.

A federal grand jury in Los Angeles indicted him for possession of secret documents in violation of the Espionage Act and theft of government property. He is free on bond.

'All Avenues Open'
Mitchell said "all avenues of criminal prosecution have remained open" since June 13 when the New York Times first published the Vietnam war study.

The Supreme Court ruling Wednesday allowing the Times, Washington Post and other newspapers to publish the documents does not affect possible prosecutions, Mitchell said.

At a news conference in Boston, Ellsberg said he did not release to the press documents in the study revealing private diplomatic channels for negotiating peace because "I didn't want to get in the way of those negotiations."

Explaining why he did release

Dickinson To Head Board At Madonna

Karl E. Dickinson, executive vice-president of Gateway Bank, was elected president of the Madonna Professional Care Center Lay Advisory Board for this year. He succeeds John Pavich who has been president of the Board since its formation in 1966.

In accepting the presidency, Dickinson took note of the recent federal grant to Lincoln, one of ten pilot cities in the nation, to develop new alternatives to institutionalization of the aged. He stated one of his first actions will be to set up an Ad Hoc Committee at Madonna to work closely with the City of Lincoln Task Force in developing such alternatives that will make Lincoln stand out as "Number One" amongst the ten cities selected.

He further stressed that rehabilitation of the elderly to return them to their homes and a normal life will continue to be foremost in Madonna's planning and care. New facilities, Day Care and other new programs of Madonna will be given priority attention, Dickinson said, to assure that it is fulfilling the needs for the elderly in the community.

Other officers elected to the Executive Committee of Madonna are Don H. Shriner, Douglas Alford and Ed Regelaen. Jack Hart was re-elected to the Board for a three year term and other new Board members elected for the same term are Tony Alesio, Jack Wells, John Fibiger, Jim Haverlan and Mrs. Walter Henrion. Other members are John Pavich, William Burke, Lawrence Dendinger, Joe Hanigan, Verner Meyers, David Breslow, Robert Johnson and Msgr. Clarence Crowley.

Retiring Board members are Alvin Glandt, State Sen. Fern Orme, Fred Wells, Joe Silverman and Bennett T. Martin.

$60 Million To Lear
Santa Monica, Calif. (UPI) — Lear Siegler, Inc., has arranged $60 million loan package from Prudential Insurance Co. of America.

most of the report, he said: "The concealment of this information for 20 years has led to the deaths of 50,000 Americans and hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese. Look where secrecy in the executive branch has led us. That's why I released the documents."

Ellsberg said he believes he was the source of all the documents leaked to newspapers "but if there were other people in the act, that's fine. I gave them to the people of this country."

Rogers, his voice rising in emotion, said one ambassador had called on him recently to say that his government could no longer trust the United States because of some of the published disclosures about U.S. decision-making in Vietnam.

The ambassador explained that his government had been assured at one time that the diplomatic role it had agreed to play for the United States would never be disclosed, Rogers said. The secretary said the Soviet-American arms control talks could fail if, for instance, some disgruntled U.S. employee stole secrets from the negotiations and offered them for publication. And he said disclosure of secret diplomatic exchanges on the Middle East situation could result in appreciable harm.

The study was turned over to the House and Senate for the first time Monday and Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird agreed Thursday to give copies of the 47-volume report to the Senate Foreign Relations and House Armed Services Committees.

The action came on the request of Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania. House Republican leader Gerald Ford of Michigan urged the Pentagon to declassify the report.

Mansfield said the study will remain top secret but the committees will have the opportunity to use the copies to lay the groundwork for joint hearings after Labor Day for an inquiry into the origins of the war.

High Body Counts Said Rewarded With Leave

London (UPI) — U.S. Army Lt. Col. Anthony B. Herbert, expanding on charges made earlier, told British television viewers Thursday he knew American officers in Vietnam who rewarded high body count reports with extra leave time in Hong Kong.

Herbert, 41, a much-decorated officer, charged earlier this year some of his superiors had been guilty of war crimes in Vietnam in 1969.

As a result of his charges the Army began investigations that included Maj. Gen. John Barnes, former commander of the 173rd Airborne Infantry Brigade in Vietnam, and Col. J. Ross Franklin, Barnes's deputy.

Probe Underway

Herbert himself also came under investigation, for reasons the Army has never made clear. All the investigations are still underway.

Herbert told the TV audience he has been asked to resign. According to Army sources, he already had been passed over for promotion and thus faces retirement or resignation.

Herbert said Thursday two of his commanders in Vietnam permitted subordinates to torture and kill prisoners.

Luxury Living

Herbert said U.S. officers enjoyed an air-conditioned life of steak, pizza and swimming pools and rewarded troops who boosted their "body count" with leave to Hong Kong.

The colonel's description came in an interview he gave to London's Thames Television Network filmed at his Atlanta, Ga., home June 10.

Herbert said he witnessed the torture incidents while serving as a battalion commander in 1969 in the 173rd Airborne, then commanded by Barnes.

Herbert said on Feb. 14 he turned over to a South Vietnamese police unit 15 to 17 Viet Cong suspects captured by his unit.

Prisoners Executed

One of his men, Herbert said, later "came and got me and told me they were executing the prisoners."

"I ran back and they had four dead males on the ground that I'd just turned over to them - and they had a woman and the woman was being held by the hair with the left hand - the left hand of this Vietnamese was around her throat with a knife dug in under the esophagus."

"There was a child hanging on to her leg screaming, and they had another child, pushing his face down into the sand and suffocating him. An American lieutenant was conducting this thing."

I grabbed hold of the lieutenant and I hollered to stop it, and they cut the woman's throat while I was still approaching them and dropped the woman to the sand. She died there in the sand."

Young Man Panics; Holdup Attempt Fails

A young man armed with a small black handgun panicked Wednesday morning, and left without getting any money when he attempted to hold up a liquor store at 48th and Van Dorn.

John Mettlin Sr., a clerk at Jax-Beer-Liquor, said the young man entered the store, "pointed the gun at me" and said "This is a holdup."

Mettlin said the youth reached around to the cash register but hit the wrong keys and couldn't get it open. Mettlin then tried to open the cash register but couldn't get it open either because it was jammed, he said.

At this point, Mettlin said, the youth panicked and ran out the store and west through the shopping center.

Inspector Robert Sawdon said the youth, described as a white male, 18 to 20 years old, 150 pounds and 5 feet 11, was wearing a section of nylon panty hose over his head which was found shortly after the attempted robbery in the street at 46th and Van Dorn.

Detective Orley Barker said there were no customers in the store at the time and that a police dog was being used in the attempt to locate the "clean appearing youth."

Police reported that their helicopter was later employed in the search for the gunman.

Special Aid Available For Schools With Many Poor

Nebraska school districts with large concentrations of low-income children will have a chance to receive additional educational funds from a special incentive grant of $122,403 that has been awarded the state through a Title I program amendment.

The grant is one of 28 available for the first time this year to states whose expenditures exceed the national "effort index" — the ratio of non-federal expenditures for public elementary and secondary education to total personal income.

The funds are made available through Title I appropriations during 1971 of $1.5 billion which served nearly eight million educationally deprived children.

The state office of education will determine who shall receive parts of the grant by first looking at the number of children from low-income families counted for under its basic grant under Title I, and the unmet needs within the local districts.

The money may be used to develop new compensatory education projects or to improve those that show special promise of success in meeting children's specific educational needs.

The state education agency will work with the local districts asking for the funds by looking at the proposed projects and deciding the area that would be best served by the grant.

Schools Asked To Plan A Year For Health Ed

A state official said Thursday Nebraska's schools have been asked to plan for one year before launching comprehensive health education programs to include drug abuse.

Roy Gray, the State Education Department's consultant on health and physical education, said letters have been sent to the schools making the request.

"They should do a year of planning before they start buying materials to teach health education," he said.

Included in the planning is a complete evaluation of the health education courses already incorporated into a school's over-all teaching program, Gray said.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

★ By SIDNEY OMARR ★

Forecast For Friday

In recent times, I have been startled to discover how many Aquarians and Arians have had difficulty in maintaining their relationships. Classically, those two zodiacal signs are supposedly harmonious. But, obviously, a cycle is occurring which makes it difficult for Aries and Aquarius to successfully relate to each other. We are, of course, speaking in a statistical sense. Some Aries and Aquarius persons continue to enjoy successful associations.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are a dynamic of creativity. Trying to hold back now would be an error. Give your all. Don't be ashamed of the way you feel. Instead, express pride. Build self-esteem.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may be disgusted at what appears to be a multiplicity of domestic details. Do what must be done — you'll be happier as a result. One close to you is being a careful observer. Act accordingly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A relative in transit may give impression of making unreasonable demands. Offer love and sympathy. Getting involved now would create undue complications. Smile.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): An individual who loves spotlight may be trying to sell you proverbial bill of goods. This is no time to speculate, risk security. Remember recent resolutions. Leo seems to be involved.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What appears to be a major setback is, in reality, a mere minor irritation. Know this and respond accordingly. A real estate agent could pop into picture. Be receptive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Humor and diplomacy are now your twin allies. Relative may appear villainous — but they actually serve as a mirror of your own foibles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Money ventures should be delayed. If practical, you are not seeing picture clearly. You require additional data, possibly including a lease or special license.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Lunar cycle coincides with time for you to take initiative. Invent and create. Break through red tape. Don't permit midlife to block your progress. State needs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Study Scorpio message. What had been delayed, is coming to light. Trying to hide truth will only complicate matters. Refuse to be victim of jealousy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Emphasis is on friends, hopes and wishes. Some who thought you were somber, realize now you are a warm, pulsating individual. New contact should be welcomed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Stop procrastinating. You have more to offer than might be imagined. Co-operate in special community project. Evaluate ambitions, goals. Refuse to be possessed by possessions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): That wonderful psychic faculty of yours is working overtime. Don't let anyone make you ashamed of your poetry. One who loves you needs your sensitive approach. Respond accordingly.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you exhibit a tendency to brood, worry over minor matters. However, during major crises, you usually are in complete self-control. You are extremely loyal to family members. Perhaps, apropos to nothing, you love a parade. Stray animals seem to feel you are their long-lost benefactor. Demo Leader Urges New Voter Participation

The leader of Nebraska's Democratic Party spread a welcome mat Thursday for young persons newly made eligible to vote by approval of the U.S. Constitutional Amendment lowering the voting age to 18.

State Democratic Chairman Hess Dyas of Lincoln said his party "urges the newly enfranchised to bring the impact of their enthusiasm and the influence of their idealism to the Democratic party."

The first concern of this group should be to register to vote Dyas said. But additionally, "I encourage new voters to become further involved by participating in political parties and candidate campaigns. He noted that the new young voters are eligible to run as delegates to county and state political conventions.

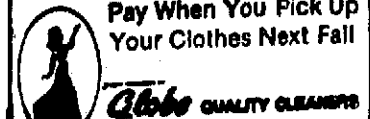

"The young voter can have great impact and influence on our political structure and our political parties," he declared.

Demo Leader Urges New Voter Participation

The leader of Nebraska's Democratic Party spread a welcome mat Thursday for young persons newly made eligible to vote by approval of the U.S. Constitutional Amendment lowering the voting age to 18.

State Democratic Chairman Hess Dyas of Lincoln said his party "urges the newly enfranchised to bring the impact of their enthusiasm and the influence of their idealism to the Democratic party."

The first concern of this group should be to register to vote Dyas said. But additionally, "I encourage new voters to become further involved by participating in political parties and candidate campaigns. He noted that the new young voters are eligible to run as delegates to county and state political conventions.

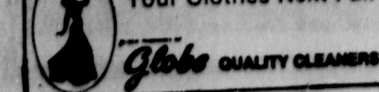

"The young voter can have great impact and influence on our political structure and our political parties," he declared.

MISS GERALDINE WALKER

MISS NANCY REIS

This morning the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Geraldine Ann Walker of Lincoln, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Walker of Phoenix, Ariz., to Ronald Dean Melichar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Melichar, is announced by the bride-elect's parents.

The wedding will take place on Saturday, Aug. 7, and the ceremony will be solemnized at Glenn's Garden Chapel in Phoenix.

Miss Walker attended the Glendale Community College in Phoenix, and now is careering in Lincoln.

Mr. Melichar has completed a four-year tour of duty with the U.S. Air Force, including 15 months in Pakistan.

Announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Nancy Reis, daughter of Mrs. Don Reis of Summerfield, Kan., and the late Mr. Reis, to Ward Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Smith of Beattie, Kan., is made this morning by the bride-elect's mother.

An August wedding is planned. Miss Reis is a former coed at the University of Nebraska, and plans to resume her studies at the University of Nebraska in Omaha in the fall.

Mr. Smith is a graduate of Hutchinson Junior College, Hutchinson, Kan., and also will attend the University of Nebraska in Omaha in the autumn.

Talk

We went looking for news this morning — and we found it. We found guests — we found parties — we found new neighbors — and we learned about a weekend away from home which involves 11 young matrons.

Arriving from Houston, Tex., last mid-week were Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Krafka (Nan Carlson) and their three children, Jimmy, Jeanie and Tommy, who are the house guests of Mrs. Krafka's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Norman Carlson.

In courtesy to her daughter Mrs. Carlson was a luncheon hostess on Thursday when she entertained at a 'cousin's' luncheon at the Lincoln Country Club. The guest list included all of the cousins in the Walt family — all of those, that is, who were in town.

And that brings us to that away-from-home weekend. We learned that there was a dual purpose for Mrs. Krafka's visit at this particular time.

It seems that 11 old friends who were classmates at Lincoln High School (class of '55), decided to have a reunion. And they did. The group of 11 spent last weekend talking over old times.

In the group, in addition to Mrs. Krafka were Mrs. Jack Swafford (Mary Lynn Stafford) of Kansas City; Mrs. Lyle Burk (Nancy Allen) of Chicago; Mrs. Leon Savaria (Anne Pickett) of Portland, Ore.; Mrs. John Clark (Judy Chapman), and Mrs. Richard Hergenrader (Maryanna Gould) both of Omaha; Mrs. Cecil Walker (Jeannette Turner) and Mrs. Robert Pierce (Shirley Hopkins), both of Denver; Mrs. Richard Hudson (Anne Schleiger) and Mrs. Veldon Lewis (Susie Swingle), and Mrs. Tom Olson (Cynthia Barber), all of Lincoln.

Among those new neighbors we mentioned are Mr. and Mrs. Adam Lewellyn — and two members of their family who still are at home. Mr. and Mrs. Lewellyn and two of their children — Beth, who is 14 years old, and Janet, who is 12 — arrived from Burlingame, Lincoln early in June.

There are three more children in the family — Timothy, who now is aboard a destroyer — another son, Adam C. Lewellyn, who has just completed his tour of duty with the U.S. Navy as a lieutenant, and a third daughter, Miss Polly Lewellyn, who was graduated from the University of California at Davis, and who has just completed her freshman year in law school also at the University of California at Davis.

Timothy Lewellyn will be leaving destroyer duty with the Navy at the end of July, but will be attending a language school in Texas. Mr. and Mrs. Adam C. Lewellyn will be making their home in Miami, Fla., where Mr. Lewellyn will be attending the University of Miami at Coral Gables.

Good morning.

Acting is a struggling profession. Whether in theatre, or in motion pictures, the turn-over for actors is tremendous. Stars who become 'famous overnight' are cast aside a week later and become as old as yesterday's news. Flippant public moods and undecided audiences make the acting profession a very difficult and insecure one.

Peter Lombard, a young actor whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Lombard, reside in Lincoln, portrayed the dynamic role of Thomas Jefferson in "1776" when it was a hit run on Broadway. But when he was offered a chance to be a part of a new musical "Prettybelle", he left his job and started long rehearsals. Playing opposite leading lady Angela Lansbury, he won many plaudits from critics for his fine acting.

However after a short run, and even before the show made it to Broadway, it was cancelled. The directors and producers got 'cold feet' and decided that the show was not worth the gamble for a Broadway audience. As a result Mr. Lombard was left without a job. After a short spell of unwinding, he received an offer for a part in "Hello Dolly" with the summer repertory theatre in Boston. He and his family are planning to spend the summer in Boston with the company.

Mr. Lombard confesses that he has held many jobs during his early acting years. Driving cabs during winter, and laundry trucks during the summer was not only a routine but a familiar practice for him a few years ago. However with determination and diligent work, he had roles in several hits, and has learned since then not to buckle under the knocks of his profession.

It would be very easy to visualize Mr. Lombard as the top, young actor on Broadway. Yet at the same time it should be remembered that his career, however significant, depends totally on the whims of a paying audience.

THE AIR-CONDITIONED . . . Village Theatre at Brownville is offering a cool variety of shows this forthcoming week. On Saturday, July 3, the Neil Simon Comedy, "Plaza Suite" will be featured starting at 8 o'clock. July Fourth can be spent with "The Matchmaker", a Thornton Wilder comedy, which will begin at 2:30 o'clock that afternoon. All seats are reserved, and advance reservations are necessary. Single admissions are available for $2.50 and children under 12 will be admitted for $1.00. Dinner cruises aboard the 300-passenger Belle of Brownville will depart at 5:30 o'clock before each evening theatre performance.

IN THE BIRD CAGE . . . Theatre, at the Children's Zoo this week there will be some interesting performances. Showtime is 1 o'clock and 2 o'clock, so you may want to time your visits to the zoo at those times.

On Friday, July 2, Lori Lyman will be her own piano accompanist for her group of songs, and Steve Steves and Pat Lemka will perform on the guitar — and sing. On Saturday, July 3, folk singer Pam Savery will entertain and play the guitar, and on the Fourth of July the Karen McWilliam Dancers will be on stage. A pantomime and dance by Amy Campbell and Terri Krivosha, and guitar and singing by Ann Gourlay and Beth Ann Young, will be the program for Wednesday, July 7.

MISS PEGGY GRAUL

This morning Mr. and Mrs. Douglas R. Graul of Carleton make announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Peggy, to Wayne Hinrichs, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hinrichs of Hildreth.

An August wedding is planned. Miss Graul is a junior at the University of Nebraska where she is majoring in elementary education.

Mr. Hinrichs is a 1970 graduate of the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture, and now is serving with the U.S. Army at Albuquerque, N. Mex.

Barbara Kuchta Reveals Plans

For her wedding on Saturday afternoon, July 24, Miss Barbara Kuchta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kuchta, has named her sister, Miss Kathy Kuchta, as her maid of honor and only attendant.

Miss Kuchta will become the bride of Stuart Sims, son of Mr. and Mrs. Randall Sims, at a 2 o'clock ceremony which will be solemnized at St. Teresa's Catholic Church.

Bill Timmerman will serve Mr. Sims as best man, and Dan Blythe and John Becker will seat the guests.

The bride-to-be was honored at a miscellaneous shower on Monday evening, June 7, when Mrs. Ray Manning entertained a group of guests at her home.

On Thursday evening, July 8, Mrs. Kevin Popp will be hostess in courtesy to Miss Kuchta at a kitchen shower to be held at her home.

Miss Kuchta will share honors with her fiancé on Friday evening, June 23, at a pre-nuptial dinner for which Mr. Sims' parents will be host and hostess at East Hills. The guest list will include the members of the families and the bridal party.

Miss Kuchta is a former student at the University of Nebraska and now is careering at the State Farm Insurance Co.

Mr. Sims is a junior in the University of Nebraska College of Business Administration where he is majoring in marketing.

LWC Board Madam Chairman Will Meet

TABLE APPOINTMENTS for a brunch, a luncheon, a tea, and certainly for a buffet supper can make or mar the party. It takes only an eye for color and some pretty silver to create the party elegance one likes to achieve. Did you know that 200 years ago dried flowers were the popular table decor? They still can be — especially if you use them in a pink centerpiece on a purple cloth — or vice versa — for your buffet table. Naturally your silver plays an important role, also. In the picture is graceful '18th Century' flatware, and a harmonizing silver tureen. Dress up your buffet supper table with your own lovely silver, and use some of those beautiful silver pieces you have tucked away for safe keeping.

on a tour of the shops

This is an ideal time of the year to make home improvements, especially outdoor changes. We suspect that this three-day holiday weekend will be used by many families to paint the exteriors of their homes and add some decorating improvements indoors as well.

With this in mind, we decided to visit some paint stores, namely Sherwin-Williams, Winterhalter's Color Spot, and Cook Paints, as well as Pauley Lumber Co.

AT SHERWIN-WILLIAMS

For the outdoors we found that the semi-gloss latex paints have greatly improved the use of enamels for the outdoors. The latex base has also now come out in antique kits, which also makes this do-it-yourself finishing far easier for the amateur.

One of the newest innovations for indoor decorating is the unusual pattern in wallpaper and wall coverings. We were told at Sherwin-Williams that many people are doing their own paper hanging these days. The use of pre-pasted paper has increased, which greatly lessens the cost of adding splashes of the unusual. Both wall paper and antiquing can add coordination to a room which has been furnished with odds and ends.

AT COOK PAINTS

Redwood furniture that is showing wear may need a coating of redwood stain. We were informed that this should probably be done every other year or so. Cook's now offers interior or exterior redwood stain in both the spray can or by the quart or gallon.

Outdoor or indoor metal or wood that needs touching up will take well to Cook's newest interior or exterior Shado-glo enamel paint. Barbecue pits that are a bit worn but still useable can put on a new face in a variety of colors or in wrought iron flat black.

For the inside of your home, Cook Paints recently has produced Corvel, a latex wall paint that is easy to apply. This store also specializes in floor coverings and suspended ceilings.

The natural look of wood can be achieved quite easily with a wood graining kit that is sold near the antique kits. A special instrument in the kit impresses the wood grain effect.

AT THE COLOR SPOT

We were taken with the wide choice of wallpapers now on the market. Both traditional and modern papers are in abundance at this store. Among our favorites are papers that have material available in the same pattern. Many of the books that feature these matching items also provide decorating hints for the entire room as well.

Among the unusual selections were wallpapers with embroidery as well as fabric, and for a more modern look, there are the foil type papers in a wide variety of abstract designs.

The Color Spot also can offer the customer a service in color decorating. The shop is filled with interesting pieces that add the finishing touch to many rooms, including wall hangings and antique pieces.

One idea that is being used quite often by young people is to frame some of the more unusual wallpapers to make attractive but inexpensive wall hangings.

AT PAULEY LUMBER

For fences, sun decks, and other wood surfaces that are hard to get around to treating once a year, why not try a stain? The Olympia brand stain that we found at Pauley Lumber is a stain with color added — all colors — and lasts longer and is easier to apply. By the way, the semi-transparent stain is a perfect finish for your sun-faded picnic table.

Speaking of picnic tables, we found some at Pauley's. They

THE LINCOLN STAR, FRIDAY, JULY 2

99's Host TAR

The Nebraska 99's, a chapter of an international organization of women pilots, will be hosting the Powder Puff Derby stops at McCook and Lincoln next week.

The Powder Puff Derby, officially known as the All-Woman Transcontinental Air Race, will begin on Monday, July 5, in Calgary, Can. The three mandatory stops include Rapid City, So. Dak., Lincoln, Neb., and Little Rock, Ark.

Two Lincoln entries are in this year's race which ends in Baton Rouge, La., on July 7. Solo in a Piper Comanche 260

(TAR No. 78) is Mrs. Robert Heins flying her second transcontinental air race, and Evelyn Sedivy with co-pilot Mrs. Frank Bartunek (TAR No. 30) in a Piper Arrow. This is Miss Sedivy's third TAR and Mrs. Bartunek's first.

Mrs. Dan Underwood, stop coordinator for Lincoln, has been making arrangements for the stop since last November. The Omaha Area Chapter 99's have also been working in planning for the "must stop."

All three Lincoln contestants are members of the Nebraska 99. They will be competing with 148 other single and multi-engine planes for the $10,000 first prize and a share in the $22,500 purse.

It is expected that race planes will begin to arrive in Lincoln the evening of July 5, with most planes arriving late morning to sunset July 6 and 7. According to Mrs. Underwood persons interested in seeing the contestants land and take-off are invited to visit the municipal airport.

Since Lincoln is a must stop, each contestant must fly-by in front of the airport control tower so they can be clocked, but land at the general aviation area on the east side of the field. Official programs with information on all contestants and the race itself will be available during the race days.

All proceeds received from donations and program sales at the Lincoln stop will be donated to a fund for Brenda Griesman, a Spaulding High School student, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Griesman. She was the only survivor of a plane crash in February of this year involving two other classmates and their instructor, and still is recuperating in a hospital.

Will you be traveling? If so, you will want to know of local news happenings while you are away. The carrier boy saves newspaper copies while you are away and delivers them in handy Vacation Pak bag upon your return at no added cost. Before leaving notify the Circulation Dept.

BIDDING QUIZ

You are South, neither side vulnerable. The bidding has been:

South	West	North	East
1♥	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♦	Pass	2♠	Pass

What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠Q7 ♥AK642 ♦AQ853 ♣10
2. ♠A6 ♥AJ764 ♦KQ954 ♣A3
3. ♠875 ♥KQJ72 ♦AJ93 ♣A4
4. ♠J4 ♥KJ953 ♦AQJ10 ♣AQ

1. Three spades. There is some ambiguity attached to North's second bid. He is obviously willing to play the hand under game, since two spades in no sense forcing, but at the same time his values may range from very poor to moderately good. Thus, he may have ♠KJ952, ♥93, ♦KJ2 ♣J4, which would produce an excellent chance for game, or he may have the same hand with no values in diamonds, which would offer a poor chance for game.

It would be unwise to make a final judgment by either passing or leaping like a kangaroo to four in an effort to guess partner's hand. North can judge his values far better than we can, and raising him to three spades will place the decision exactly where it belongs.

2. Pass. This hand is not nearly as promising as the previous one, and the smartest thing to do is pass. North's bidding indicates that he wants to play the hand in spades, and there is no good reason to assume that either hearts or diamonds will serve better as trumps. In misfit hands the bidding is generally dropped as soon as possible.

3. Four spades. Game is extremely likely, once partner rebids spades, and you should not run the risk of North's passing an invitational bid, such as three spades.

High-card point count is by no means the only guide to how high you should bid this hand. The real question is whether North will lose four tricks with spades as trumps — and this possibility, though it exists, is too remote to be considered seriously.

4. Three notrump. The same sentiments apply. A rebid of two notrump would be invitational but not forcing, and a sound game might easily be missed if partner passed. Of course, North may not accept notrump as the final resting place and he may go on to four spades, but such a development could be accepted with considerable equanimity. The 18 high-card points are highly valuable at either contract.

Abby: you can do nothing

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have a terrible problem. My son who is 23 and is taking his master's degree in psychology came home last week and told me he intends to marry the girl he has been going with for a year. She is a registered nurse, intelligent and refined, and seemed like a very nice person, but in the course of the conversation I learned that she is 30 years old.

How can I keep my son from marrying this old woman who is no doubt trying desperately to get married to a man regardless of his age?

CONFIDENTIAL, PLEASE

DEAR CONFIDENTIAL: There is nothing you can — or should do. Any interference on your part might permanently damage the relationship between you and your son. Perhaps your suspicions are wrong. They could be perfect for each other.

DEAR ABBY: I am only in the 5th grade but I have some strong feelings about life and death. Today while walking down the main street in our town I found a bird's nest that had fallen out of a tree. There were some baby birds in the nest that looked like they were just born and couldn't fly yet.

I asked some people who were walking by what I should do with the birds, and one man said, "Shove them down the sewer." Another man said, "Step on their heads." And someone else said, "Either feed them to a cat or get a B.B. gun and when the mother comes, use it on all of them." Please tell me, Abby, what is the matter with people? What would you have done?

FIFTH GRADER

DEAR FIFTH: Some people think it's smart to talk a cruel game, but they wouldn't actually behave that way. I would have borrowed a ladder and with the help of an adult put the nest and the birds back in the tree. Or called the humane society.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped addressed envelope.

The Cook's Nook

A bang-up barbecue in your own backyard is a glorious way to celebrate the Fourth. And to make it a mini-work, max-pleasure holiday, try this new pinch-to-make kabob recipe that has all the dazzle of a sky rocket.

A glamorous glaze made with honey, prepared yellow mustard and the syrup from canned peaches distinguishes the Carefree Kabobs. The peaches, brushed with the same sweet-tart sauce and heated on the grill, make a delicious and unusual accompaniment.

Serve with a lettuce and tomato salad, crusty rolls or French bread and for dessert, Roman Candle Cookies and lemon sherbet. Bake the colorful cookies a few days in advance—with instant mashed potato granules in the dough, they'll keep beautifully.

CAREFREE KABOBS

- 1 can (1-1/2) peach halves
- 1/4 cup prepared yellow mustard
- 1/4 cup oil
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 1 1/2 pounds boneless sirloin steak cut in 1 1/2 inch cubes.
- 2 green peppers cut in squares
- 1/2 pound fresh mushrooms
- Drain peaches, reserving 1/4 cup syrup. Combine syrup with mustard, oil and honey.

Alternate steak, peppers and mushrooms on skewers. Grill over hot coals until done, brushing frequently with mustard sauce. Just before kabobs are done, brush peaches with remaining mustard sauce and heat on grill. 4 to 6 servings.

ROMAN CANDLE COOKIES

- 1 cup soft butter or margarine
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon milk
- 3/4 teaspoon peppermint or vanilla extract
- 2 cups sifted all purpose flour
- 1/4 cup (1/2 of 5-serving envelope) instant Mashed Potato granules
- 3/4 teaspoon salt

1 cup finely chopped pecans

Red licorice cut into thin strips

Red sugar topping

Beat together butter, sugar, milk and extract until light and fluffy. Sift together flour, potato granules and salt. Add to butter mixture with pecans; mix thoroughly to form a stiff dough. Roll rounded teaspoons of dough into 2 1/2 inch firecracker shapes. Push a small piece of licorice in one end of each cookie to resemble a wick. Roll in sugar topping. Place on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 3 to 4 dozen cookies.

TABLE APPOINTMENTS for a brunch, a luncheon, a tea, and certainly for a buffet supper can make or mar the party. It takes only an eye for color and some pretty silver to create the party elegance one likes to achieve. Did you know that 200 years ago dried flowers were the popular table decor? They still can be — especially if you use them in a pink centerpiece on a purple cloth — or vice versa — for your buffet table. Naturally your silver plays an important role, also. In the picture is graceful '18th Century' flatware, and a harmonizing silver tureen. Dress up your buffet supper table with your own lovely silver, and use some of those beautiful silver pieces you have tucked away for safe keeping.

THE LINCOLN STAR, FRIDAY, JULY 2

99's Host TAR

The Nebraska 99's, a chapter of an international organization of women pilots, will be hosting the Powder Puff Derby stops at McCook and Lincoln next week.

The Powder Puff Derby, officially known as the All-Woman Transcontinental Air Race, will begin on Monday, July 5, in Calgary, Can. The three mandatory stops include Rapid City, So. Dak., Lincoln, Neb., and Little Rock, Ark.

Two Lincoln entries are in this year's race which ends in Baton Rouge, La., on July 7. Solo in a Piper Comanche 260

(TAR No. 78) is Mrs. Robert Heins flying her second transcontinental air race, and Evelyn Sedivy with co-pilot Mrs. Frank Bartunek (TAR No. 30) in a Piper Arrow. This is Miss Sedivy's third TAR and Mrs. Bartunek's first.

Mrs. Dan Underwood, stop coordinator for Lincoln, has been making arrangements for the stop since last November. The Omaha Area Chapter 99's have also been working in planning for the "must stop."

All three Lincoln contestants are members of the Nebraska 99. They will be competing with 148 other single and multi-engine planes for the $10,000 first prize and a share in the $22,500 purse.

It is expected that race planes will begin to arrive in Lincoln the evening of July 5, with most planes arriving late morning to sunset July 6 and 7. According to Mrs. Underwood persons interested in seeing the contestants land and take-off are invited to visit the municipal airport.

Since Lincoln is a must stop, each contestant must fly-by in front of the airport control tower so they can be clocked, but land at the general aviation area on the east side of the field. Official programs with information on all contestants and the race itself will be available during the race days.

All proceeds received from donations and program sales at the Lincoln stop will be donated to a fund for Brenda Griesman, a Spaulding High School student, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Griesman. She was the only survivor of a plane crash in February of this year involving two other classmates and their instructor, and still is recuperating in a hospital.

Will you be Traveling? If so, you will want to know of local news happenings while you are away. The carrier boy saves newspaper copies while you are away and delivers them in handy Vacation Pak bag upon your return at no added cost. Before leaving notify the Circulation Dept.

on a tour of the shops

This is an ideal time of the year to make home improvements, especially outdoor changes. We suspect that this three-day holiday weekend will be used by many families to paint the exteriors of their homes and add some decorating improvements indoors as well.

With this in mind, we decided to visit some paint stores, namely Sherwin-Williams, Winterhalter's Color Spot, and Cook Paints, as well as Pauley Lumber Co.

AT SHERWIN-WILLIAMS

For the outdoors we found that the semi-gloss latex paints have greatly improved the use of enamels for the outdoors. The latex base has also now come out in antique kits, which also makes this do-it-yourself finishing far easier for the amateur.

One of the newest innovations for indoor decorating is the unusual pattern in wallpaper and wall coverings. We were told at Sherwin-Williams that many people are doing their own paper hanging these days. The use of pre-pasted paper has increased, which greatly lessens the cost of adding splashes of the unusual. Both wall paper and antiquing can add coordination to a room which has been furnished with odds and ends.

AT COOK PAINTS

Redwood furniture that is showing wear may need a coating of redwood stain. We were informed that this should probably be done every other year or so. Cook's now offers interior or exterior redwood stain in both the spray can or by the quart or gallon.

Outdoor or indoor metal or wood that needs touching up will take well to Cook's newest interior or exterior Shado-glo enamel paint. Barbecue pits that are a bit worn but still usable can put on a new face in a variety of colors or in wrought iron flat black.

For the inside of your home, Cook Paints recently has produced Corovel, a latex wall paint that is easy to apply. This store also specializes in floor coverings and suspended ceilings.

The natural look of wood can be achieved quite easily with a wood graining kit that is sold near the antique kits. A special instrument in the kit impresses the wood grain effect.

AT THE COLOR SPOT

We were taken with the wide choice of wallpapers now on the market. Both traditional and modern papers are in abundance at this store. Among our favorites are papers that have material available in the same pattern. Many of the books that feature these matching items also provide decorating hints for the entire room as well.

Among the unusual selections were wallpapers with embroidery as well as fabric, and for a more modern look, there are the foil type papers in a wide variety of abstract designs.

The Color Spot also can offer the customer a service in color decorating. The shop is filled with interesting pieces that add the finishing touch to many rooms, including wall hangings and antique pieces.

One idea that is being used quite often by young people is to frame some of the more unusual wallpapers to make attractive but inexpensive wall hangings.

AT PAULEY LUMBER

For fences, sun decks, and other wood surfaces that are hard to get around to treating once a year, why not try a stain? The Olympia brand stain that we found at Pauley Lumber is a stain with color added — all colors — and lasts longer and is easier to apply. By the way, the semi-transparent stain is a perfect finish for your sun-faded picnic table.

Speaking of picnic tables, we found some at Pauley's. They are made of either hemlock or redwood — and they fold up for easy moving or storage. Portable patio decks are also available there for lounging around — as well as many, many other items that will keep you up and at 'em.

Take, for example, the white crushed rock and the crushed bark that are perfect for garden, shrub and planting areas — after all, surrounding the areas with the rock or bark will make mowing much easier.

For the patio, steps, porch, or driveway that aren't yet, we recommend Color-it to the cement surfaces. Just add autumn gold, rustic red, slate, or oasis green to pre-mixed concrete — and there you have it!

If you are a home-repairs addict we found just the remedy at Pauley's — asphalt and crack filler for the driveway, patio, or anywhere else it is needed.

If you happen to be a do-it-yourself person, the lumber company has much to offer — including prefinished moldings and trim for either inside or outside. Some have already been stained, others are in natural wood so you can use the finish of your choice.

Bridge: quiz day

B. Jay Becker

BIDDING QUIZ

You are South, neither side vulnerable. The bidding has been:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass

What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠Q7 ♥AK642 ♦AQ853 ♣10
2. ♠6 ♥AJ764 ♦KQ954 ♣A3
3. ♠875 ♥KQJ72 ♦AJ93 ♣A
4. ♠J4 ♥KJ953 ♦AQJ10 ♣AQ

1. Three spades. There is some ambiguity attached to North's second bid. He is obviously willing to play the hand under game, since two spades is in no sense forcing, but at the same time his values may range from very poor to moderately good. Thus, he may have ♠KJ9852, ♥93, ♦KJ2 ♣J4, which would produce an excellent chance for game, or he may have the same hand with no values in diamonds, which would offer a poor chance for game.

It would be unwise to make a final judgment by either passing or leaping like a kangaroo to four in an effort to guess partner's hand. North can judge his values far better than we can, and raising him to three spades will place the decision exactly where it belongs.

2. Pass. This hand is not nearly as promising as the previous one, and the smartest thing to do is pass. North's bidding indicates that he wants to play the hand in spades, and there is no good reason to assume that either hearts or diamonds will serve better as trumps. In misfit hands the bidding is generally dropped as soon as possible.

3. Four spades. Game is extremely likely, once partner rebids spades, and you should not run the risk of North's passing an invitational bid, such as three spades.

High-card point count is by no means the only guide to how high you should bid this hand. The real question is whether North will lose four tricks with spades as trumps — and this possibility, though it exists, is too remote to be considered seriously.

4. Three notrump. The same sentiments apply. A rebid of two notrump would be invitational but not forcing, and a sound game might easily be missed if partner passed. Of course, North may not accept notrump as the final resting place and he may go on to four spades, but such a development could be accepted with considerable equanimity. The 18 high-card points are highly valuable at either contract.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

There were strikes all over Europe, and a soft rain blew across Ireland.

In Dublin, the bus drivers struck on weekends. "I don't know when the mail'll be sorted," said the lady in the postoffice.

Strikes in Rome. In France, "la greve" halted trains. Workers in Barcelona were muttering "huelga." The newspapers showed pictures of New York traffic jammed by Teamsters. I got behind an Irish coffee in quiet old Dromoland Castle and waited for everything to blow over.

In the evening we went to ancient Bunratty Castle. For years it stood in gallant ruins beside the Ennis-to-Limerick road. Then they restored it: Drawbridges. Period furniture. Medieval dinners and harpers and Irish music in the candlelit great hall.

It has a bloody history. Owned by the McNamaras. Seized from them by the O'Briens. Grabbed by the Normans. Historic entertainments took place in the great hall. And Thomas de Clare's dinner for Brian Ruag h is recorded in history.

There are three wonderful restored castles with such dinners: Castle Knappogue (it means the Castle of the Kiss — you can't beat the Irish for slaughter or romance). They do a pageant of Irish history.

Up near Galway, at Castle Dungaire, they have Irish literature. It was writers' country. In one of Shaw's plays, the old lady says: "I see ye've been to Galway Bay to sharpen yer wits."

The castles are owned. Apartments, aside from the entertainment halls, are lived in. An English Lord owns Bunratty. Knappogue belongs to an American. Dungaire is the property of an Englishwoman. Titled.

The Irish Government probably could take them back. For they were taken away from Irish owners long ago by English conquerors.

The Dungaire lady is an odd one.

"As part of the bargain," said the tourist man, "Her Ladyship was to get one of the tour dinners served in her rooms each night."

"Now she took a holiday in England for three months. And when she came back, she demanded her share of the three months of steaks she hadn't eaten. Oh yes, we gave them to her. What she did with them, I couldn't say."

I ran into Bernard McDonough. He made a mint in garden equipment in West Virginia. Came back to Ireland where his grandfather was born. Bought Dromoland Castle four centuries old, and turned it into an imposing castle-hotel.

He built Clare Inn, a lovely new hotel on a hill looking over the Shannon.

He bought the airport hotel.

He built Limerick Inn, probably the finest in the south. It has never opened. The county council says he must enclose the outside fire escapes.

"I won't do it," said McDonough. "There's no reason to. And these people asked me to build that hotel. Then they impose conditions. I told them: 'I'll put a For Sale sign on it first'."

I went down to Shannon and caught an Irish International jet. We climbed out of the rain, over the Shannon, across the green rim of Ireland. And so we flew to Canada.

Thursday Beginning Of New State Fiscal Year

By The Associated Press
Although Thursday was just another day to most persons, to the administrators of Nebraska state government, the day was much more significant — it marked the beginning of a new fiscal year.

The state of Nebraska is now running on the budget proposed by Gov. J. James Exon and approved by the 1971 Legislature as Wednesday marked the final day of operation under the 1969-71 biennial budget advanced by Gov. Norbert Tiemann.

Treasurer Wayne Swanson had no immediate figures on fiscal year end fund balances and cash reserves in the state treasury. His office said those figures would be available next week.

No DAS Figures Either
Likewise for the Department of Administrative Services (DAS), the state agency which oversees the operation of all other agencies.

DAS Director Gus Lieske was out of town but Budget Officer Darrel Stotts said his office is working on preparing figures which show balances in various funds along with amounts of unspent money from the 1969-71 budget which have lapsed back to the state.

However, Stotts did say earlier predictions of a general fund balance of $42 million at the end of the fiscal year would probably be correct.

He explained some money is still being paid out but predicted the final general fund balance would be close to $42 million.

Money Carries Over
Out of that balance during this fiscal year will come money for funding some of the new programs of Exon including a $6.6 million state aid program to municipalities for sewage treatment construction.

The budget for the just-begun fiscal year, as approved by the 1971 Legislature, calls for general fund spending of $203.6 million and over-all spending of $524 million.

Those figures can be compared with the biennial figures for 1969-71 of $358 million general fund spending for the two years and $837 million over-all spending.

NU Volunteer Plan First OK'd In U.S.

The University of Nebraska learned Thursday it is the first University in the nation to be approved for a federally financed program that will give college credit to students who volunteer for anti-poverty service.

The NU program, described Wednesday by Chancellor D. B. Varner in a briefing for newsmen, will be called the Nebraska Opportunity for Volunteer Action.

The project was announced in Washington by President Nixon and Joel Blatchford, director of ACTION, the agency that combines VISTA, Peace Corps and other volunteer programs.

Announced By Nixon It was during a visit to the NU campus early last spring that President Nixon announced plans to pull together volunteer programs and provide additional incentives for volunteer service for young people.

Negotiations for the program's initiation have been underway between NU officials and Blatchford for many weeks, according to Varner.

Under the NOVA proposal, some 100-125 students from NU, UNO and the University Medical Center in Omaha will be recruited to work with social and anti-poverty organizations in the state, beginning in September.

Varner, in Washington Thursday to complete contract negotiations, said plans are to pay students subsistence wages of $175 a month for service in Omaha and $150 elsewhere in the state while they earn up to 30 credit hours.

Stipend Considered

The students would probably also receive a $600 stipend upon completion of the 12-month assignment, Varner said. However, approval of these details awaits completion of the federal contract and announcement of the amount of the grant to be awarded to NU.

Named to direct the program on the Lincoln campus will be Dr. Gene Harding, associate professor of journalism at NU. Mike Adams of the UNO Manpower Office will head the program's NU activities, with J. Perry Tollman, professor of pathology, in charge of Medical Center program.

"In order to reach the people within the communities, the university staff and faculty associated with NOVA will expand and intensify their contacts with neighborhood groups and organizations in Lincoln and Omaha, as well as outstate Nebraska. These groups and agencies include such established anti-poverty agencies as the Lincoln Action Program and the Greater Omaha Community Action. They also include local community self-improvement programs and tenant organizations," an NU prospectus said.

Word received on the NU campus indicated that ACTION plans to have five universities in the nation participating in the program by September, with 500-1,000 students enrolled. The number is expected to double by second semester.

Suit Is Filed Against State In Drowning

A $71,500 lawsuit was filed in Lancaster District Court Thursday against the State of Nebraska in connection with the 1970 drowning of a 10-year-old Lincoln youth in the Pawnee Reservoir near Emerald.

The father, Lowell Inselman of 3701 No. 11th, alleges in the suit that the death of his son, Bradley Inselman, was caused by negligence of the State Park and Game Commission.

Inselman alleges the state agency negligently failed to properly mark the swimming area, post warning signs of the water's depth and provide life guards.

Young Inselman drowned June 9, 1970, while swimming with innertubes with the nine-year-old brother, according to the suit. His body was recovered three days later.

The suit notes a $71,500 claim filed under the State Tort Claims Act was disallowed last month by the state board.

The action seeks $1,500 burial expenses, $35,000 damages on behalf of the boy's parents, and $35,000 for the deceased youth's estate.

30% Of JA Fund Goal Is Reached

The fund drive for Junior Achievement of Lincoln, Inc., has reached the 30% mark, according to Dan Remigio, chairman, and Don Dischner, finance committee chairman.

A total of $35,000 is being sought for the program in which high school students learn how a business operates by going through every phase of a functioning business enterprise.

Welfare Change Will Start Aug. 1

Director Lawrence Graham said Thursday the State Welfare Department will put its new welfare standards policy into effect Aug. 1.

The policy, called "ratable reduction of standards," was scheduled to go into effect at the beginning of the new fiscal year but was delayed to allow time to make sure county welfare workers were well acquainted with how it works, he said.

The policy is aimed at preventing a deficit in the department's budget and will result in some Aid to Dependent Children recipients having their payments reduced.

Institution of the policy will also require each one of Nebraska's approximately 11,200 ADC family budgets being reprocessed.

During March, Graham said, the average monthly budget for an ADC family in Nebraska was $164.08, including both state and federal funds. The new policy is expected to produce a reduction in that standard.

Baby Is Burned By Bowl Of Soup

Fourteen-month-old Charles A. Scribner of 1247 C was hospitalized Thursday with second-degree burns from a bowl of hot soup, police reported.

The baby's mother, Mrs. Diane K. Scribner, told police that he pulled a bowl of soup she was fixing him onto himself.

He was reported in "satisfactory" condition at Lincoln General Hospital.

Lincoln Program For Aging Set To Receive Grant

Rep. Charles Thone announced Thursday that the administration on aging of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has granted the Nebraska State Advisory Committee on Aging $220,000 for the Lincoln Area-wide Model Project Program on Aging.

The aim of this program is to develop new alternatives to the institutionalization of the elderly.

NU Volunteer Plan First OK'd In U.S.

The University of Nebraska learned Thursday it is the first university in the nation to be approved for a federally financed program that will give college credit to students who volunteer for anti-poverty service.

The NU program, described Wednesday by Chancellor D. B. Varner in a briefing for newsmen, will be called the Nebraska Opportunity for Volunteer Action.

The project was announced in Washington by President Nixon and Joel Blatchford, director of ACTION, the agency that combines VISTA, Peace Corps and other volunteer programs.

Announced By Nixon
It was during a visit to the NU campus early last spring that President Nixon announced plans to pull together volunteer programs and provide additional incentives for volunteer service for young people.

Negotiations for the program's initiation have been underway between NU officials and Blatchford for many weeks, according to Varner.

Under the NOVA proposal, some 100-125 students from NU, UNO and the University Medical Center in Omaha will be recruited to work with social and anti-poverty organizations in the state, beginning in September.

Varner, in Washington Thursday to complete contract negotiations, said plans are to pay students subsistence wages of $175 a month for service in Omaha and $150 elsewhere in the state while they earn up to 30 credit hours.

Stipend Considered
The students would probably also receive a $600 stipend upon completion of the 12-month assignment, Varner said. However, approval of these details awaits completion of the federal contract and announcement of the amount of the grant to be awarded to NU.

Named to direct the program on the Lincoln campus will be Dr. Gene Harding, associate professor of journalism at NU. Mike Adams of the UNO Manpower Office will head the program's UNO activities, with J. Perry Tollman, professor of pathology, in charge of Medical Center program.

"In order to reach the people within the communities, the university staff and faculty associated with NOVA will expand and intensify their contacts with neighborhood groups and organizations in Lincoln and Omaha, as well as outstate Nebraska. These groups and agencies include such established anti-poverty agencies as the Lincoln Action Program and the Greater Omaha Community Action. They also include local community self-improvement programs and tenant organizations," an NU prospectus said.

Word received on the NU campus indicated that ACTION plans to have five universities in the nation participating in the program by September, with 500-1,000 students enrolled. The number is expected to double by second semester.

Suit Is Filed Against State In Drowning

A $71,500 lawsuit was filed in Lancaster District Court Thursday against the State of Nebraska in connection with the 1970 drowning of a 10-year-old Lincoln youth in the Pawnee Reservoir near Emerald.

The father, Lowell Inselman of 3701 No. 11th, alleges in the suit that the death of his son, Bradley Inselman, was caused by negligence of the State Park and Game Commission.

Inselman alleges the state agency negligently failed to properly mark the swimming area, post warning signs of the water's depth and provide life guards.

Young Inselman drowned June 9, 1970, while swimming with inner tubes with the nine-year-old brother, according to the suit. His body was recovered three days later.

The suit notes a $71,500 claim filed under the State Tort Claims Act was disallowed last month by the state board.

The action seeks $1,500 burial expenses, $35,000 damages on behalf of the boy's parents, and $35,000 for the deceased youth's estate.

30% Of JA Fund Goal Is Reached

The fund drive for Junior Achievement of Lincoln, Inc., has reached the 30% mark, according to Dan Remigio, chairman, and Don Dischner, finance committee chairman.

A total of $35,000 is being sought for the program in which high school students learn how a business operates by going through every phase of a functioning business enterprise.

Welfare Change Will Start Aug. 1

Director Lawrence Graham said Thursday the State Welfare Department will put its new welfare standards policy into effect Aug. 1.

The policy, called "ratable reduction of standards," was scheduled to go into effect at the beginning of the new fiscal year but was delayed to allow time to make sure county welfare workers were well acquainted with how it works, he said.

Institution of the policy will also require each one of Nebraska's approximately 11,200 ADC family budgets being reprocessed.

During March, Graham said, the average monthly budget for an ADC family in Nebraska was $164.08, including both state and federal funds. The new policy is expected to produce a reduction in that standard.

Lincoln Program For Aging Set To Receive Grant
Rep. Charles Thone announced Thursday that the administration on aging of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has granted the Nebraska State Advisory Committee on Aging $220,000 for the Lincoln Area-wide Model Project Program on Aging.

The aim of this program is to develop new alternatives to the institutionalization of the elderly.

The policy is aimed at preventing a deficit in the department's budget and will result in some Aid to Dependent Children recipients having their payments reduced.

Fourteen-month-old Charles A. Scribner of 1247 C was hospitalized Thursday with second-degree burns from a bowl of hot soup, police reported.

The baby's mother, Mrs. Diane K. Scribner, told police that he pulled a bowl of soup she was fixing him onto himself.

He was reported in "satisfactory" condition at Lincoln General Hospital.

SPORT SIGNALS

By Hal Brown
Sports Editor, The Star

By GERALD ESKENAZI
The New York Times
In Sun Country

Miami Beach — Here in sun country, the water has attracted men who live and work with pools the year round. Some are former diving champions, such as Earl Clark, and some are former varsity collegiate divers, such as Bob Hoffmann. Pete Desjardins, who is in pool maintenance here, was a double Olympic champion in 1928.

Hoffmann is 28 years old and has been on the beach for five years, lately managing the pool and Cabanas at the Golden Strand Hotel.

"I went to Southern Illinois for two years on a diving scholarship," he said. "I had no idea what I wanted to do. Mostly I was diving — and that was how I saw college. So I figured, why waste time doing it in school?"

Soon he was on the road in diving shows. Then some friends told him about Miami Beach. "A lot of former college divers came down here," he said. "Most of them weren't suited for much else."

The diver, Hoffmann is quick to point out, "is a mile apart from the swimmer. The swimmer has to get up early in the morning and swim and swim. He has to be in top shape."

But a diver goes up on the boards, practices a few things and that's it. The swimmer doesn't get the immediate satisfaction that the diver does. When you're up there you're a ham. And if you can be the first in the world to do a four-and-a-half somersault before an audience, why it's the greatest feeling in the world."

Pool Manager

Clark is the pool manager here at the Twelve Caesars. He was the national platform champion from 1939 to 1941 and a former springboard title-holder.

"Yes, I know that usually a guy who's a national champion in a sport goes into something else. Most of the divers who came down here after the war came because they couldn't do anything else. But I love this life. Hell, I'm 54, and I still do a little diving and the people love it, a lot of my friends have more money than I do, but they're not half as happy."

"There used to be 20, 25 diving shows a week," explained Hoffmann. "A guy could work on the beach, and compete in shows for $25 a pop. He'd make $400 a week just for the shows. Some guys married rich. Some stashed it away and retired, but then things changed. The condominiums came here and the families came down. Now you need a 16-week course for a pool operators' license. Sure, there are still places where you can work and still stay married. But mostly that's in the past."

Hoffmann has two children, some stocks, and some real estate "that goes up every day." But some of his friends, some of them former collegians, aren't so lucky. They came down 20 years ago. "Now they're in their late 40's and they've got to be thinking what they're going to do now. A lot of them have no idea. You don't look good for the hotel if you're flabby."

"Is there an age limit?" asks Clark. "It's 82."

The pool managers can earn up to $25,000 a year, depending on their deals with the hotel. Many take in less than $10,000, most of them at hotels that keep all cabana rentals, and income from lounges and umbrellas.

Changing Times

"Some beach guys used to make $1,000 a day in season just from rentals," said Hoffmann. "They were driving Caddies and the hotel managers were driving Fords. Then the hotel managers said, 'Hey, what's this?' And now the hotels for the most part get the money."

Hoffmann is working on a deal now that can enable him to "leave the beach" in a few years. "Any guy who comes here thinking that's going to be it for the rest of his life is mistaken," he said.

Papik Quits Doane Head Football Post

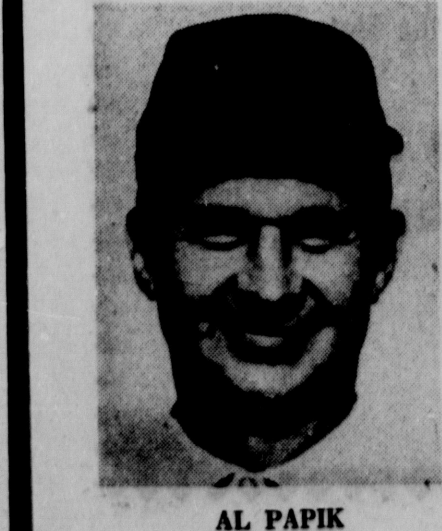

Crete — The man who led Doane College into national football prominence resigned Thursday as head coach because of expanded administrative work.

Al Papik, who guided Doane through 38 straight unbeaten games from mid-season in 1965 to the first game of the 1970 season, will continue to serve as athletic director, assistant football coach, professor of physical education and head track coach.

"We've increased our athletic program so tremendously over the last 15 years that it's pretty difficult for one person to serve so many areas adequately," Papik said of his 16-year tenure as head football coach and athletic director.

"When you've been in this business for so long and enjoy it so much, it's hard to give it up," Papik, 44, added. "But we had an opportunity to divide the coaching chores and decided that Ray Best was a natural hand-picked candidate. He's served a six-year apprenticeship here and knows the system well."

JEAN HYLAND

insurmountable lead of 26 strokes over nearest challenger Dorothy Schwartzkopf during the first three rounds, coasted to her tenth title Thursday with a closing 81 at Pioneer's Park.

Mrs. Schwartzkopf, who has captured the crown on eight occasions, finished with an 82, producing a 27-shot spread, the biggest since the tourney switched from match to medal play five years ago.

The engraver hasn't put any other name on the trophy since 1957. Sara Lehman won three times in a row from 1955-57. Jean or Dorothy has taken the title every summer since.

It was a runaway this year. Mrs. Hyland was off to a fast start with opening one-over-par rounds of 80 and 77 at Holmes Park and Hillcrest Country Club Monday and Tuesday before adding a three-over-par 79 at the Lincoln Country Club Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Mrs.

Schwartzkopf fell 12 strokes off the pace with a first-round 92 at Holmes, then 20 and 28 shots back with a pair of 85s at Hillcrest and LCC.

"Dorothy and I played fairly even golf in the final round," Mrs. Hyland said. "I don't think more than two strokes separated us the whole way around."

Jean called the final 18 holes by the two leaders "steady but not spectacular. But I've been very pleased with my play all week."

Mrs. Hyland and Mrs. Schwartzkopf have each won the state championship four times. Dorothy's daughter Christie, who bypassed the city event, is the reigning state champ. The three, who will rank among the favorites, will be joined by a Capital City contingent of about 15 others for the state tourney which opens in Norfolk, July 12.

Jane Deeter, who led the Lincoln Junior Girls golf championships from the outset, made an even bigger runaway of her tourney than Mrs. Hyland did in the women's division.

Miss Deeter recorded a final-round 98 at Pioneer's Park Thursday to capture the girls title by a 68-stroke margin.

Import, Native Horses Win Split Juvenile Stakes

. . . BOMBOLINO TAKES FIRST DIVISION, BRITISH FLEET SECOND

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — The story of imports at Ak-Sar-Ben here is rather confusing. First, the "wise" bettors tell you an import can win, then they say he can't.

That's the way it was during the running of the two divisions of the Juvenile Stakes here Thursday afternoon with an import, Bombolino, winning the first $15,000-added division in 1:05 2-5, but a "home-grown" product surprised practically everyone by beating the favored Heisanative in the seventh.

But bettors accustomed to seeing Jack Van Berg in the winner's circle shouldn't have been too surprised to see British Fleet come on with a rush in the homestretch and win over the favorites.

"I was a little worried about Heisanative," jockey J.L. Lively said following his win aboard British Fleet with a 1:04 4-5 clocking in the seventh. "You've always got to be cautious about a horse with that kind of record."

Lively said he didn't expect British Fleet to swing wide coming off the turn. "I thought we were going to take a shortcut to the winner's circle," Ak-Sar-Ben's leading jockey joked. "I was way behind at the corner, though, and just had to do something."

British Fleet was among the last away from the starting gate as Heisanative and Wee Miracle jumped to the head of the pack where they waged a neck and neck duel down the backstretch of the 5 1/2 furlong race and through most of the turn with first one, then the other leading the charge to the wire.

But then British Fleet swung wide and started to stretch for the wire as Gentle Smoke roared between the two favorites. At the wire, it was British Fleet finishing strongly, followed by Gentle Smoke, Aye Jay Aye, then the favored Heisanative.

"I was really a little more worried about Aye Jay Aye," Jack Van Berg said following his victory with British Fleet. "Both (Aye Jay Aye and British Fleet) hold wins over the other so it was really between them both as to who would win. But you can never count the imports out of it."

"You've got to respect those shipped in," he said seriously. "Anyone with a good horse has to be watched."

Van Berg said he told Lively to hold the 2-year-old colt of Sonny Fleet out of Estacion "about fifth then let him move up", but it didn't work that way.

"I wouldn't change anything about a winner," he grinned. "He (Lively) had to make up his own mind what to do when the horse broke that far back."

British Fleet's win boosted his 1971 winnings to $29,503 with a record of three wins and one place finish out of four starts. The colt returned $12.40, $6.60 and $4.20 to backers.

In addition to his win aboard British Fleet in the seventh, Lively also made trips to the winner's circle with Sky Flower in the fifth, Ann Can Yell in the first, and Independent Fox in the ninth.

D. E. Whited, imported from Chicago to ride Heisanative in the seventh and Bombolino in the sixth, said he wasn't worried about Bombolino's foes.

"I was never worried about any of the other horses in the (sixth) race," Whited said. "I had no reason to be wary of any of the others. I had the best horse."

Bombolino led practically all the way after leaving the bunch to return $7.40, $5.40 and $3.80 to backers and boosting his year's winnings to $20,463 with the $9,116 winner's share of the purse.

Smith Enters Pair At Omaha

By MARK GORDON

Omaha — T.V. Smith is throwing a duo effort at six competitors today at Ak-Sar-Ben in an attempt to capture the $10,000 Nebraska Handicap. Although Can-He-Scoot and Mr. Swinger will race uncoupled for wagering purposes, both the Smith-trained animals appear as formidable foes for the other 2-year-olds and up in the 6-furlong course.

Can-He-Scoot, winner of two of nine tests this year with two thirds, has earned $9,605 and has defeated four of today's competitors in a 6-furlong allowance chase for $6,000 on June 19. The 4-year-old colt will carry top-weight of 128 pounds and jockey Wendell Leeling for the first time this season.

Stablemate Mr. Swinger has scored one triumph, three seconds and three thirds in 1971 with his latest outing being a second-place effort in a mile and 1-16 allowance test for $7,500 on June 19. He will tote second-top-weight of 127 pounds and regular rider Jack Fieselman.

While Can-He-Scoot kicked dust in the faces of Navashane, Sonny's Delight, Golden Space and Real Chance in his last outing, those four are out to make amends and will gain up to 14 pounds this time out.

Navashane, winner of two of 10 starts, was two lengths behind in that scamper, and will carry 124 pounds and Ken Jones while Sonny's Delight, who placed 5 1/2-lengths back, will carry 118 pounds and Ak-Sar-Ben's leading rider J. L. Lively.

H. Van Berg entry, was fourth 6 1/2-lengths back and gets in at 116 pounds while Real Chance was fifth 8-lengths behind and gets in at 114 pounds.

While those horses seek revenge for their last defeat to Can-He-Scoot, the M. H. Van Berg stablemate of Golden Space, Gold Rags, will be aiming for her second straight win after clipping Mr. Swinger by 3/4 length in their last meeting.

Gold Rags, has three wins, three seconds and two thirds in 13 starts this year. She will carry 118 pounds.

The pride of the Paul Kemling stable, Bold Accent, will carry low-weight of 117 pounds including regular pilot Fred Ecoffey.

The 6-year-old mare scored three straight handicap triumphs at Fanner Park this year, then dropped to fifth in her first Ak start on May 1, but has rebounded for three straight seconds and her first victory here on June 5.

By Hal Brown Sports Editor, The Star By GERALD ESKENAZI The New York Times In Sun Country

Miami Beach — Here in sun country, the water has attracted men who live and work with pools the year round. Some are former diving champions, such as Earl Clark, and some are former varsity collegiate divers, such as Bob Hoffmann. Pete Desjardins, who is in pool maintenance here, was a double Olympic champion in 1928.

Hoffmann is 28 years old and has been on the beach for five years, lately managing the pool and Cabanas at the Golden Strand Hotel.

"I went to Southern Illinois for two years on a diving scholarship," he said. "I had no idea what I wanted to do. Mostly I was diving — and that was how I saw college. So I figured, why waste time doing it in school?"

Soon he was on the road in diving shows. Then some friends told him about Miami Beach. "A lot of former college divers came down here," he said. "Most of them weren't suited for much else."

The diver, Hoffmann is quick to point out, "is a mile apart from the swimmer. The swimmer has to get up early in the morning and swim and swim. He has to be in top shape."

But a diver goes up on the boards, practices a few things and that's it. The swimmer doesn't get the immediate satisfaction that the diver does. When you're up there you're a ham. And if you can be the first in the world to do a four-and-a-half somersault before an audience, why it's the greatest feeling in the world."

Clark is the pool manager here at the Twelve Caesars. He was the national platform champion from 1939 to 1941 and a former springboard title-holder.

"There used to be 20, 25 diving shows a week," explained Hoffmann. "A guy could work on the beach, and compete in shows for $25 a pop. He'd make $400 a week just for the shows. Some guys married rich. Some stashed it away and retired, but then things changed. The condominiums came here and the families came down. Now you need a 16-week course for a pool operators' license. Sure, there are still places where you can work and still stay married. But mostly that's in the past."

Hoffmann has two children, some stocks, and some real estate "that goes up every day." But some of his friends, some of them former collegians, aren't so lucky. They came down 20 years ago. "Now they're in their late 40's and they've got to be thinking what they're going to do now. A lot of them have no idea. You don't look good for the hotel if you're flabby."

"Is there an age limit?" asks Clark. "It's 82."

The pool managers can earn up to $25,000 a year, depending on their deals with the hotel. Many take in less than $10,000, most of them at hotels that keep all cabana rentals, and income from lounges and umbrellas.

Changing Times

"Some beach guys used to make $1,000 a day in season just from rentals," said Hoffmann. "They were driving Caddies and the hotel managers were driving Fords. Then the hotel managers said, 'Hey, what's this?' And now the hotels for the most part get the money."

Hoffman is working on a deal now that can enable him to "leave the beach" in a few years. "Any guy who comes here thinking that's going to be it for the rest of his life is mistaken," he said.

Papik Quits Doane Head Football Post

Crete — The man who led Doane College into national football prominence resigned Thursday as head coach because of expanded administrative work.

Al Papik, who guided Doane through 38 straight unbeaten games from mid-season in 1965 to the first game of the 1970 season, will continue to serve as athletic director, assistant football coach, professor of physical education and head track coach.

"We've increased our athletic program so tremendously over the last 15 years that it's pretty difficult for one person to serve so many areas adequately," Papik said of his 16-year tenure as head football coach and athletic director.

"When you've been in this business for so long and enjoy it so much, it's hard to give it up," Papik, 44, added. "But we had an opportunity to divide the coaching chores and decided that Ray Best was a natural hand-picked candidate. He's served a six-year apprenticeship here and knows the system well."

Best, 34, was a four-year

Doane letterman at tackle under Papik and graduated in 1960 with all-Nebraska College Conference recognition.

He also will become a basketball assistant under coach Bob Erickson and will continue serving as head golf coach.

"The football coaching transition will be no problem at all," according to Papik, who was twice named a Sunday Journal and Star State College Coach of the Year (in 1967 and '69).

Papik, who coached for five years at Crete and Laurel high schools before accepting the Doane job, finished with an 81-51-9 career football coaching record at the Crete college.

He said that adding indoor track to Doane's athletic program last year was an important factor in his decision to step down as head coach.

"In 16 years we've added wrestling, cross country, baseball and indoor track," Papik noted. "And with the recruiting that accompanies football and track and the addition of the new fieldhouse, I felt it was in the best interests of the college to relieve myself of some of the burden."

City Trophy Engraver Could Use Ditto Marks

It must be getting monotonous for the guy who engraves the name of the winner on the Lincoln City Women's golf championship trophy. He could save time by just using ditto marks.

Four Tied For Lead In Canada

Montreal (AP) — Longshot Rolf Deming fired a five-under-par 67 Thursday to move into a four-way tie for the first-round lead in the $150,000 Canadian Open Golf Tournament.

The 31-year-old Deming, a one-time mathematics instructor at the University of Minnesota, was deadlocked for the top spot with our regulars Rod Funseth, Phil Rodgers and Lou Graham.

One stroke back at 68 were Canadian George Knudson and little Rod Curl, a Wintu Indian from California.

Veteran Lionel Hebert and Canadian newcomer Ben Kern headed a group at 69, three under on the 6,920-yard Richelieu Valley Golf Club course.

Arnold Palmer, who scored the first of his 50-plus professional victories in this national championship in 1955, had a 70, two under par, despite some mediocre putting.

"I played reasonably well," Palmer said, but when asked about his putting, source of complaints for some months, he just shrugged: "It's a broken record."

South African Gary Player and U.S. Open king Lee Trevino, co-favorites for the $30,000 first prize, had even more trouble. Each had a 73, leaving them six strokes off the pace and needing to improve if they are to make the cut for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Rod Funseth 33-34-67 Lou Graham 34-35-67 Rolf Deming 34-35-67 Phil Rodgers 33-34-68 George Knudson 34-35-69 Rod Curl 34-35-69 Ben Kern 34-35-69 Lionel Hebert 34-35-69 Ben Kern 34-35-69 through most of the turn with first one, then the other leading the charge to the wire.

But then British Fleet swung wide and started to stretch for the wire as Gentle Smoke roared between the two favorites. At the wire, it was British Fleet finishing strongly, followed by Gentle Smoke, Aye Jay Aye, then the favored Heisanative.

Van Berg said he told Lively to hold the 2-year-old colt of Sonny Fleet out of Estacion "about fifth then let him move up," but it didn't work that way.

"I wouldn't change anything about a winner," he grinned. "He (Lively) had to make up his own mind what to do when the horse broke that far back."

British Fleet's win boosted his 1971 winnings to $29,503 with a record of three wins and one place finish out of four starts. The colt returned $12.40, $6.60 and $4.20 to backers.

In addition to his win aboard British Fleet in the seventh, Lively also made trips to the winner's circle with Sky Flower in the fifth, Ann Can Yell in the first, and Independent Fox in the ninth.

D. E. Whited, imported from Chicago to ride Heisanative in the seventh and Bombolino in the sixth, said he wasn't worried about Bombolino's foes.

"I was never worried about any of the other horses in the (sixth) race," Whited said. "I had no reason to be wary of any of the others. I had the best horse."

Omaha — The story of imports at Ak-Sar-Ben here is rather confusing. First, the "wise" bettors tell you an import can win, then they say he can't.

That's the way it was during the running of the two divisions of the Juvenile Stakes here Thursday afternoon with an import, Bombolino, winning the first $15,000 added division in 1:05 2-5, but a "home-grown" product surprised practically everyone by beating the favored Heisanative in the seventh.

But bettors accustomed to seeing Jack Van Berg in the winner's circle shouldn't have been too surprised to see British Fleet come on with a rush in the homestretch and win over the favorites.

"I was a little worried about Heisanative," jockey J.L. Lively said following his win aboard British Fleet with a 1:04 4-5 clocking in the seventh. "You've always got to be cautious about a horse with that kind of record."

Lively said he didn't expect British Fleet to swing wide coming off the turn. "I thought we were going to take a shortcut to the winner's circle," Ak-Sar-Ben's leading jockey joked. "I was way behind at the corner, though, and just had to do something."

British Fleet was among the last away from the starting gate as Heisanative and Wee Miracle jumped to the head of the pack where they waged a neck and neck duel down the backstretch of the 5 1/2 furlong race and

$3.5 Billion Health Personnel Funds Authorized By House

Washington (AP) — The House passed Thursday a comprehensive $3.5 billion health manpower-training plan aimed at accelerating training of medical personnel.

The twin-bill, three-year program containing grants, loans and incentives is aimed at "shortening the curriculum for physicians, gaining at least five more medical schools, graduating more family doctors, helping financially shaky medical schools, and having doctors go to critical shortage areas," said Rep. Paul G. Rogers, D-Fla.

The House accepted the bills basically as written but added provisions prohibiting discrimination based on sex.

The measures concentrate on "satisfying the needs in the manpower field by 1978," Rogers said, and require medical schools to accept 5% or 10 students, whichever is greater, and nursing institutions to accept 10% more students, to qualify for funds.

The dollar cost of this distribution of funds to schools of medicine, osteopathy and dentistry could reach $12,500 per graduate. That is more than double what the Nixon administration had sought.

In addition, although the President called for a $3,000 maximum annual scholarship per student — up $500 from the current amount — the House bill sets the top at $3,500.

The administration has not opposed the House bills, but they go well beyond Nixon's recommendations in key sections.

Furthermore, the bill contains family-doctor training provisions that supporters said eliminate major objection raised by Nixon last year when he vetoed the Family Medicine Act.

In separate votes, the House approved the $2.8 billion comprehensive health manpower bill by 343 to 3, then voted 323 to 0 in favor of its companion $710 million nurse training measure.

The authorization measures, once approved, would be subject to funding through separate appropriations-bill action by Congress.

WALTER SCHNELL

Optimist Club Friend Award To W. Schnell

There are 775 boys who look up to Walter Schnell who was presented the Lincoln Optimist Club's Friend of the Boy Award, Thursday.

Schnell is the man who brought these inter-city boys into the Cornhusker Council's scouting program. As a volunteer scoutmaster, he has recruited enough youth to build a total of 11 Cub Scout packs, 12 Boy Scout troops and two Explorer posts one of which is at the Nebraska State Reformatory.

Working 24 years at the Hendrick's Sod Co., where he averages 55 hours a week as a foreman, heavy equipment operator and truck driver, Schnell still has found the time to work with kids, one of his favorite interests.

This "interest in kids" has led him to become the Cubmaster of Pack 27 for two years, Webelos leader of Pack 27 for two years, Scoutmaster of Troop 27 for four years and a member of committee for one year.

Scouting also has become a life style in the Schnell family's life. Mrs. Schnell has served as a den mother and assistant den mother. She is currently den mother of Pack 87, of which son, Ronald, 9, is a member.

Other members of the Schnell family are Robert, 20 who received a God and Country award, David, 15, who recently gave up scouting for a more rigorous sports program and Patricia, 17.

$17 Million Given To Feed Children

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon Thursday signed into law bills to make $17 million available immediately for free or reduced-price lunches for poverty children in summer recreation programs and authorize another $35 million if big city demands exceed the new funds.

The cash for the "non-school" feeding programs came as an emergency appropriation because requests for the program for the current summer exceeded Agriculture Department expectations.

City Receives New Sewage Plant Funds

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf announced Thursday that the city has received an additional $975,000 for expansion of the Theresa St. sewage treatment plant from the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

The federal aid brings the total grants to the maximum possible the city can receive.

Schwartzkopf said he learned of the federal aid, made possible because of the state's providing matching funds, from Rep. Charles Thone.

"This is indeed welcome news and helps to reduce the city's total cost," the mayor said.

The expansion project, scheduled to be completed in the latter part of next year, is expected to cost $4,435,000. The city's share will be $887,000.

The mayor said the city's cost would have been close to $3 million had not the Legislature approved the state funding for water sewage treatment during the last session.

Strikes Across Country Idle Many Workers

Strikes across the country Thursday idled thousands of workers in mining, construction, transportation and city service. Longshoremen shut down all West Coast ports for the first time in 23 years.

In one of the largest strikes, 26 copper unions called a strike of their 36,000 workers when contract talks in Salt Lake City, Utah, broke off.

Virtually all ships in the West Coast's 24 major ports were tied up. The only cargo expected to move was military.

Both the longshoremen's and the copper workers' negotiators said they and the employers were "wide apart."

Garbage Strike

In Detroit, 1,400 rebellious sanitation workers ignored an agreement between city and union officials to extend their old contract and began a strike. It brought a halt to all public garbage collection in the nation's fifth largest city.

Mayor Roman S. Gribbs opposed the strike. "It is unwarranted and illegal and will not accomplish anything their leadership wants or anything the city of Detroit wants."

Fifty-two San Francisco bus drivers for Airporter, Inc., which carries 5,000 passengers a day between the city and its suburban airport, walked off the job.

More than 1,000 bus drivers and other employees of Alameda-Contra Costa Transit District in the East Bay, which carries 200,000 passengers a day, negotiated to replace an old contract.

Rail Strike Set

In Cleveland, the United Transportation Union said its members would strike three major railroads beginning July 16 to back demands for a new national contract covering wages and working conditions on railroads throughout the nation.

The UTU represents about 265,000 train and engine crew members throughout the nation.

Major construction projects in parts of northern California remain halted as a result of a walkout by 1,100 carpenters and 150 tunnel workers. The two unions were not officially on strike, their workers refused to work until a new contract was signed with Associated General Contractors of California, Inc.

The new U.S. Postal Service went into effect Wednesday, and immediately was faced with labor problems. Despite a law prohibiting walkouts in the service, some workers were talking strike. In New York, postal employees met to vote on a strike call.

I pay to plead for your constructive study, thought and action because I'm flustered by persistent academic and editorial arrogance, indolence, indifference, ETC. and stumped by THE POSER!

Why do universities have schools of Journalism and departments of Political Science?

Our two universities have more than 100 puzzles in The Poser, and mazes of other excesses and absurdities that take transfusions from taxpayers and waste the precious time, talents and productive potentials of youth, but there are neither faculties nor facilities to educate teachers of Government and Citizenship, and following is one of the dire results that enlarge THE CHASM and speed THE CIRCLE. The Vital Subject of Government And Citizenship is not even mentioned in the program for current discussions of curriculum for our Capitol City schools. "Did I tell you I've found a substitute for expensive lighter fluid?"

MR. TWEEDY by Ned Riddle

"Did I tell you I've found a substitute for expensive lighter fluid?"

"Let's see -- there's quinine water, club soda, lime juice, collins mix, tomato juice..."

ALL OVER THE WORLD BABIES ARE PUT DOWN FOR NAPS. WHETHER THEY ARE SLEEPY OR NOT! IT'S SO UNFAIR!

BABIES OF THE WORLD, UNITE! I SAY NAPS ARE UNNECESSARY AND CUT INTO OUR PLAYTIME! I SAY...

7-2

THAT FELLOW BACK THERE TEACHIN' THEM FROGS TO BE NICE... WHAT'S HE KNOW ABOUT IT?

HES A FROG HIMSELF.

7-2

THERE YOU GO! A REMARK BY THE USUALLY UNINFORMED MIND... A SNAP JUDGEMENT! THAT MAN MAY LOOK LIKE A FROG... BUT ON MICE HES AN EXPERT.

HES A CAT?

HES A TOAD.

SEE?

7-2

HEY, LUKE--AIN'T THAT A DIFFERENT KIND OF PAINTING THAN YOU ALWAYS DO?

COULD BE. I FEEL DIFFERENT ABOUT THIS ONE, BENNY.

LOOKS KINDA FAMILIAR... LIKE SOMEBODY I SEEN...

7-2

WHEN I WAS ABOUT 15, MRS. WORTH, MISS CUTLER USED TO VISIT US--AND LECTURE MY MOTHER ABOUT LETTING ME GO OUT ON DATES!

I'LL CONFESS THAT I AGREE WITH HER, BETTY! ...A GIRL THAT AGE...

BUT SHE WAS SCORNFUL WHEN MAMA TAUGHT ME COOKING--AND LIKE THAT! "IN THIS ADVANCED AGE," SHE'D SAY, "A WERE HOUSEWIFE IS A WOMAN WASTED!"

MRS. WORTH! IF SHE KEEPS ON TRYING TO "MAKE ME REALIZE MY POTENTIAL AS A HUMAN BEING," I'LL...

7-2

ELIZABETH!... I AM WAITING FOR MY MAIL... AND YOUR WORK IS WAITING FOR YOU!

7-2

WE'VE BEEN HORRIBLE GEN. RIGHT FROM THE DAY YOU CAME INTO OUR SHOP!

I HATED TO TALK ABOUT THINGS AND THEN LET YOU DOWN BY NOT BUYING!

7-2

IT WAS SORT OF THE SAME WHEN THE GUYS PUT ME UP FOR ELECTION!

I HATED IT, BUT I DIDN'T KNOW HOW TO PUCK OUT OF IT!

SOME-BOOY COMING?

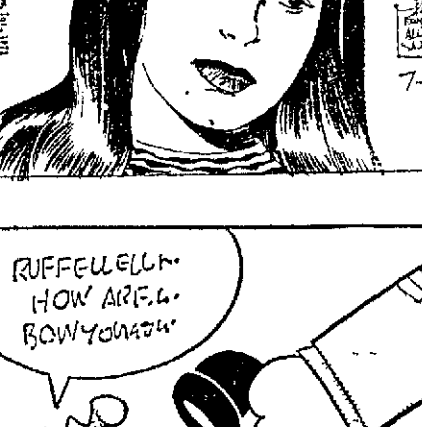

MY MOTHER! WHERE'S THE NEAREST EXIT?

7-2

I HOPE YOU DON'T MIND, SIR. HE GETS SUCH A KICK OUT OF IT.

7-2

LOOK! THE PEPPY PRUNE COMPANY WILL PAY $10,000 FOR A WAY TO TAKE THE WRINKLES OUT OF PRUNES.

WOW!

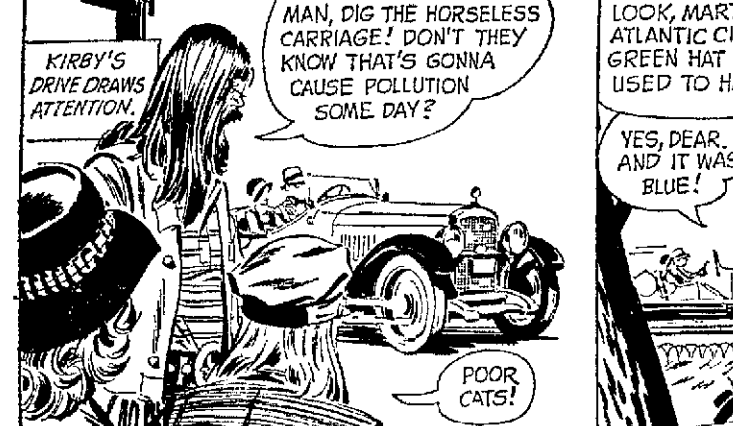

7-2

WHAT MAKES YOU THINK HE'LL DO IT?

I'LL OFFER HIM HALF THE MONEY!

KIRBY'S DRIVE DRAWS ATTENTION.

MAN, DIG THE HORSELESS CARRIAGE! DON'T THEY KNOW THAT'S GONNA CAUSE POLLUTION SOME DAY?

POOR CATS!

7-2

LOOK, MARTHA! REMEMBER ATLANTIC CITY AND THE GREEN HAT YOU USED TO HAVE?

YES, DEAR, AND IT WAS BLUE!

I HOPE YOU CHEATED TO DRAW MY NAME FOR THIS PARTY, RIP.

OF COURSE, MILLIE! I NEVER LEAVE ANYTHING SO IMPORTANT TO CHANCE...

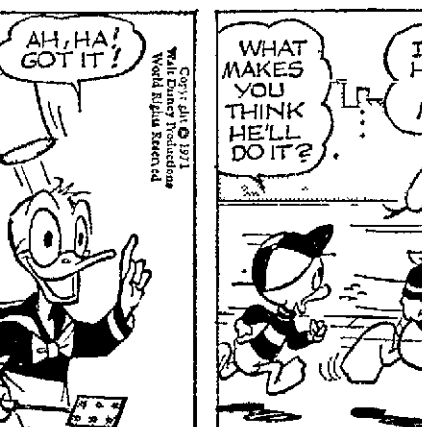

7-2

I WOULDN'T MISS THAT ACTION FOR ANYTHING, MAN! I'LL CUT OUT NOW.

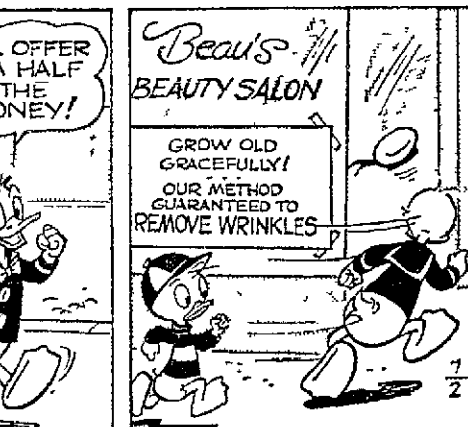

MAGGIE ALWAYS SAYS I CAN'T COMMUNICATE WITH TRIPPER! HERE'S WHERE I THROW A BLUFF.

7-2

THAT'S A GROOVY IDEA, DADDY-O! LIKE THE CATS CAN HOLD THE ROCK SESSION IN OUR DAD!

7-2

GROW OLD GRACEFULLY! OUR METHOD GUARANTEES TO REMOVE WRINKLES.

Parts of the island of Hawaii resemble the Old West, with cattle, ranches and cowboys.

Ladybugs do not die at the end of the season like so many other insects, but hibernate for the winter.

El Paso, Tex., was named for the Spanish for The Pass because of the pass through the mountains at the border site.

About 23 million blocks of stone were used to build the Great Pyramid of Cheops.

The Rocky Mountains, a jagged 5,000-mile barrier running from Alaska to Mexico, are made up of more than 100 separate north-south ranges.

WISHING WELL

by William J. Miller

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
